Who Were YOU, 100 Years Ago?
Blind Birds of Nice
New Milton Poem
Jeffries as Preacher
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

An architect, aged fifty, is found wandering, unable to tell who he is or where he lives. That "amnesia" interests us. We forget that the billion and a half human beings on earth ALL have amnesia.

Who ARE you, really? Where were you 100 years ago? Where will you be, and where will you live 100 years from now? What we can call "conscious life" is just a flash of consciousness in eternity. Amnesia victims often have such flashes.

At Nice, where in Winter the idle from all over the world walk on the Promenade Des Anglais, men sell tiny birds like parrots, beautifully colored, wonderfully tame. They sit on a little stick held in your fingers, and never fly away.

A woman has discovered that the entire taming process consists in putting out the poor creatures' eyes. Seeing nothing, they fear everything, fear especially to lose their hold on that little stick.

That is how we feel about this earth; blind to what is beyond it, we cling on desperately. If we could see beyond and know what is outside, should we fly away in millions, through the doors of death, as those poor birds would fly if they could see?

A new poem by John Milton is discovered. Written early, it probably has little value. But millions will read it in newspapers, if it is short enough—while of every ten able to read, nine certainly know nothing of Milton's real work.

Better than discovering something new by a great poet would be to make the great poets "discover" a few hundred millions of the empty brains.

Advertising men should read some letters written by Milton for Cromwell, when Milton was Cromwell's secretary, also his slam-bang discussion with a certain Dutchman. They'd find there the "kick" that they long to get in their style.

In a soft silk shirt, with neat, wide, bright stripes of white, purple and yellow, Mr. Jeffries, ex-heavyweight prize fighter, began yesterday his career as preacher. "It's nobody's business if I want to swear, smoke and drink, so long as my heart is right. Let your conscience be your guide," says he.

That's a broad platform, wider than usual, but you have to think of something new in these days of competition. It will remind Jeffries of his last great fight if he ever meets Billy Sunday in the new ring he has chosen.

John L. Sullivan did not exactly preach, although he was the greatest of all fighters since Du Guesclin. But he did lecture on temperance and consulted this writer concerning his lecture. Fate had made him a temperance lecturer, he said. He would have preferred to lecture on patriotism.

Senators Lodge and Underwood showed clearly, in the Senate, that at least one of them does not know what the Four-Power Treaty means. One said it meant one thing, the other, another. If those men that sat listening, like provincial owls, while the wool was pulled over their eyes, don't know what the treaty means, how much can the Senators generally know? Lodge and Underwood, nominally, helped to frame it. In reality it was handed to them.

Japan can tell the two learned gentlemen what the treaty means, so can England. If the Republican party passes it, that treaty will soon mean something at the ballot box that will surprise good Republicans.

David Hand, who lived near Ashley Grace, at Fanwood, forty-five years ago, had a cow that got an apple stuck in her throat. She swelled up. Mr. Marsh, the butcher—there was no veterinary—said to make a hole in her side between two ribs, let the air out, and she'd be all right. Mr. Hall, who had four teams, said no. While they argued the cow died.

Some one ought to tell that to the gentlemen at Washington arguing about the soldiers' bonus.

If President Harding and Secretary Fall put through their $350,000,000 land reclamation plan, reported favorably by the Senate Irrigation Committee yesterday, their names will be remembered with gratitude when little fights of today are forgotten. To drain swamps and irrigate deserts means to kill off mosquitoes and disease, provide homes for legions, food for millions. Some friend of Mr. Harding's should celebrate the ending of his first year as President by preparing a vivid statement of what he has tried to do, and actually DONE, for the nation's land and its farmers. There has been no President more earnest in such work.

5 PERSONS SAVED BY PULMOTOR

Several Children Among Those Affected by Fumes From Furnace That Filled House

Seventeen persons, boarders in the house operated by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Griffen at No. 166 Salem street, Malden, were overcome by gas fumes from the furnace today.

Five of them were seriously affected and were treated with a pulmotor. The five are: Mrs. Effie Phinney and her ten-year-old son, Asher; Mrs. Grace Whitely and two-year-old Charles Whitely; Miss Alvina Joncas. All will recover.

A faulty damper in the furnace piping is said to have been responsible for the fumes.

Mrs. Whitely was the first to be awakened by the gas which penetrated to her room through a register. She managed to call for aid before fainting.

Mrs. Phinney occupying a nearby room, heard her and tried to go to her assistance, but fell unconscious in the hallway.

About this time Miss Joncas was awakened by the fumes and tried to reach a window, but dropped to the floor before she could raise the sash.

The sound of the fall roused Griffen, who investigated and called up the Malden police and asked that assistance be sent.

Three physicians and a pulmotor were sent to the house and the work of reviving the inmates begun.

The other occupants of the house, while affected unpleasantly by the fumes, escaped serious consequences.

LOYAL TROOPS HALT REVOLT IN LIMERICK

Rebel Plans to Organize for Attack on Dublin Frustrated; Situation Well in Hand

By DANIEL O'CONNELL,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Limerick, March 8.—It was the original plan of the revolters in the Irish Republican Army to make Limerick the rallying point for an attack against the Irish Provisional Government at Dublin, it was learned here today.

The revolutionary plans, however, have apparently failed. Reinforcements of loyal troops have arrived, and the loyalists outnumber the rebels five to one.

Richard Mulcahy, minister of defence in the Dublin Cabinet, who has been conducting pacific negotiations with the leaders of the rebels, left Limerick today. He said the loyal soldiers have the situation in hand.

Limerick, March 8 (By the Associated Press).—Large forces of troops are now in Limerick, occupying the Williams street barracks and five of the other barracks located here.

They have also taken over the local jail. British troops are still occupying the new barracks, and the ordnance building. The ordinary police

Surrette, State's Evidence, Accuses Attorney on Trial in Auto Ring Case

Testimony that Attorney George E. Perry of Somerville, on trial in East Cambridge Court as alleged leader of an auto-stealing ring, had paid him money for changing over stolen cars was given today by Jeremiah Surrette, one of the original defendants in the case, who pleaded guilty and is now a State witness.

Surrette also testified that when the gang was arrested Perry had said to him: "The only way we can get out of this is to kill Rice."

The Rice alluded to is Harlie E. Rice of Winthrop, who, with Surrette and a third defendant, pleaded guilty when the trial opened.

Surrette proved the star witness for the government up to date. He said that for changing over and repainting alleged stolen cars he received $200 for each job. He declared he received some of this money from Perry personally.

"KILL RICE."

On one occasion when he failed to receive payment he said he went to Perry and complained. In reply he testified Perry said:

"Well, if you didn't get paid for that we'll make it up on others."

"When the gang was arrested," he continued, "Perry said to me, 'Well, we're caught. The only thing for us to do now is to go out and kill Rice.' I told him this was a pretty poor proposition to make, and said to him, 'Go kill him yourself.'"

Throughout most of 1917, Surrette said, he practically made his living stealing autos for the ring. He said he was assisted in a number of these thefts by the mysterious Crowley who figures in the case.

He told of stealing an auto at the Hallowell Garage, Roxbury, with Crowley and then notifying Perry of the theft by telephone. He testified Perry replied:

"All right. Take it out to Malden and I'll have Rice there."

They drove to Malden, met Rice and surrendered the machine. Later witness said he saw the car in Perry's own garage. He said Perry remarked: "I guess I'll keep that car. It's a good one."

PAID RIGHT AWAY.

The promptness with which he and Crowley were paid for their operations were thus described by the witness:

"We'd go out and steal a car during the night," he said. "Along about 7:30 in the morning we'd drive it over to Perry's house and call him. He'd come to the window, open it and we'd tell him we'd just stolen another machine.

"He'd say 'All right—take it to Melrose.' We'd do that. Then at noon we'd show up at Perry's office in town. He'd take us into his private office and pay us right off."

Surrette admitted that in the handling of the alleged stolen machines he had posed as "John Marshall," a

TWO BABIES BURIED IN CELLAR

Laborer Unearths Second Gruesome Find Underneath Somerville Elks' Home

The second body of an infant was found today in the cellar of the old Columbus Tyler mansion at No. 29 Central street, Somerville, now owned by the Somerville Lodge of Elks. The body, like the first found yesterday, was wrapped in a woolen skirt and covered by lime and three feet of ashes.

Both bodies were found by Joseph Loconglos, a laborer, employed in excavating the cellar.

The first, discovered within a few feet of the spot where the second had lain hidden, was found by the digger yesterday afternoon and turned over to Medical Examiner Thomas M. Durell, was declared to have been buried two years ago.

It was difficult for the examiner to say positively, but he believed it to have been the body of a very young and possibly a premature child.

The second body, found today, also is that of a very young baby, but whether boy or girl it was impossible to ascertain.

After unearthing the first body, Loconglos moved to another spot in the cellar and resumed work. Today he went back to the corner where the first body was found and had turned over but a few shovelfuls of ashes when he came upon the skirt that wrapped the second.

The second body was turned over to an undertaker, Frank Flaherty, who said that appearances led him to believe that it had been in the cellar at least two years, if not longer.

Dr. Durell will view this body later. The Somerville police are making an investigation, using the scraps of clothing in which the bodies were wrapped as a starting point.

The Tyler mansion is one of the old residences of Somerville. Some years ago it was used as the residence of a Unitarian clergyman.

HAS BILL THAT WOULD ABOLISH RACETRACKS

Albany, March 8.—A bill to put racetracks out of existence by preventing even oral betting on the result of races has been introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman Betts. In legislative circles its passage is considered doubtful. Assemblyman Betts said he introduced the bill because a "powerful racetrack lobby" had killed another measure he offered in imposing a 6 per cent. tax on the gate receipts at racetracks.

MYSTERY DEEPENS IN HOTEL TRAGEDY

Husband Declares Mrs. Barnes Was Lured Against Will; Autopsy Is Guarded

Police today began working on the theory that Mrs. Alice Barnes, the pretty young woman found dead at the Hotel Arlington, was the victim of an overdose of morphine.

It was learned that Mrs. Barnes had been addicted to the use of drugs for several years. Some time ago she went to a sanitorium, but the cure was only temporary.

Federal narcotic agents working under the direction of Dr. Erwin C. Ruth have begun investigating the death of the woman. They are tracing the source of the drugs she is thought to have taken.

Medical Examiner William H. Watters today sent the internal organs of the young woman to chemists for analysis. His autopsy failed to reveal any signs of violence.

George J. Higgins, forty-nine years old, of No. 56A Berkeley street, and manager of the Robert Fabery, Inc., Drug Company at Hollis and Tremont streets, with whom Mrs. Barnes went to the Hotel Arlington, was arraigned before Judge Parmenter in Municipal Court and pleaded guilty to violation of the true name law. He was fined $10 and released.

RELATIVES PUZZLED.

Patrolman Charles Eldridge of the East Dedham street station, as complaining officer, testified that Higgins had registered as "Charles Bartlett and wife of Falmouth."

Meantime Thomas G. Barnes, the woman's husband, and her neighbors and friends are mystified by the plications in the circumstances surrounding her death. They are demanding questions to the following questions:

1. Where was Mrs. Barnes and what happened to her between 11 o'clock when Higgins says she left a theatre to meet him and 5 a. m., when she appeared with him at the hotel?

2. How could Mrs. Barnes have led a "double life" as indicated by Higgins' story, when so far as her husband and mother-in-law knew she never went out at night alone?

3. How could Higgins, as he says, have known her two years ago as Alice Maynard, when Barnes, her husband, never had heard that name before?

4. Was Mrs. Barnes under the influence of a drug when she entered the hotel with Higgins?

Barnes, prostrated, insists his wife would not have voluntarily gone to a hotel with another man.

His mother, Mrs. Barnes, Sr., now a nervous wreck and under care of a physician, declared:

"Alice was a good girl, pure minded and true. She had not been out alone since last December."

On Monday afternoon Barnes left his home, where his wife, his mother and himself have been living, and went to Providence on business. His wife told him, he said, that she would go to Roxbury to the home of her sister, Mrs. Thomas Clark of No. 11 Brinton street.

Half an hour after the husband had left Mrs. Barnes went out on the errand she had announced, her mother-in-law said.

"She kissed me good-bye and told me not to wait supper for her," said Mrs. Barnes, Sr. "Then she went out down the street, turning at the corner to wave her hand at me—and that's the last I ever saw of her."

Investigation by the family showed that she had actually gone to the sister's home, leaving there about 4 o'clock. From that time on her movements are buried in mystery.

Higgins, according to the police, said that he met her early in the evening downtown. He knew her as Alice Maynard, he said, and had not seen her for several months. They walked about the Common for a while, he said, and then he bought her a ticket to a theatre and left her at the entrance, returning to his drug store on Tremont street to work for an hour or so.

At about 11 o'clock, according to the police version of his story, he closed the store, met Mrs. Barnes returning from the theatre, and went with her to the St. Regis Hotel. Before going to the hotel, he added, he had first mixed a quantity of gin and orange juice in a bottle and taken it with him.

Then came several hours of wandering, according to his story, during which time they visited both the St. Regis and his own lodgings, and consumed the liquor jointly. When she expressed a fear to go home at so late an hour, he said, he took her to the Arlington Hotel, where the two secured a room under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bartlett of Falmouth.

Lynn Girl Wife Flees Fire Carrying Day-Old Babe

Mrs. Louise Lima became a mother yesterday.

Today when fire broke out in an apartment beneath her's at No. 180 Summer street, Lynn, she picked up her baby boy, threw a bathrobe around him and ran from the house to a store across the street.

She was in her night clothes.

The fire was quickly extinguished, with little damage.

A physician was amazed when called to examine the young mother after she had returned home to find her condition excellent.

She is twenty-two years old.

30,000,000 GRAB BILL GOES OVER ONE YEAR

Legislation to Authorize Power and Light Scheme Referred to Next General Court

Attempts on the part of gas and electric corporations of Massachusetts to force through the Legislature a $30,000,000 grab bill were repulsed by the committee on power and light today when it was voted to refer the matter to the next General Court.

The bill was filed by Everett W. Burdett, acting as counsel for the corporations. It provided that the various companies be allowed to capitalize $30,000,000 in premiums.

This vast amount in premiums was rolled up through sale of stock at prices above par value. It was the plan of the corporations to distribute the $30,000,000 among stockholders in new stock without expense to the stockholders themselves.

The public would then be asked to pay the dividends.

The bill has been bitterly fought since it bobbed up on Beacon Hill and the corporations have exerted every possible effort to jam it through the present legislative session.

In addition to side-tracking this bill the Power and Light Committee also referred to next year's Legislature several other bills which the gas and electric companies were eager to put through this year's session.

Only three bills, and these of minor importance, were favorably reported. These will be acted upon before the present Legislature adjourns.

TUFTS BAR CASE POSTPONED BY COURT

Deposed District Attorney Promises Not to Practice or Become Candidate

With the promise that he would not be a candidate for public office or practice law, the trial of former District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County on disbarment charges was today postponed without date by Justice Jenney in the Supreme Judicial Court.

The Tufts case came up on motion of Attorney Leland Powers, counsel for Middlesex Bar Association, for the court to set an early date for trial. This was opposed by Attorney Melvin M. Johnson, counsel for Tufts, who made the agreement cited above on behalf of his client. Tufts was not in court.

"There is no public exigency that demands immediate action in this case," said Attorney Johnson. "Mr. Tufts is not practicing law. He is engaged in business that causes him to be away from home for weeks at a time. He should not be required to go to trial at this time."

Attorney Johnson amplified his statement later to reporters. He said:

MAY BE RENEWED ANY TIME.

"This does not mean that the Tufts case is indefinitely postponed. It merely means that we felt that the motion to force his trial was not quite in order at this time. We felt that it should not be advanced, at least until after the Pelletier-Coakley disbarment trials have been disposed of. Whenever public exigency demands, the motion in the Tufts case may be renewed. That's how the matter stands now."

In spite of what Attorney Johnson said, however, a persistent rumor was in circulation that today's postponement was the first step in pigeon-holing the disbarment petition against Tufts.

His friends and sympathizers, many of them influential, feel that he has been punished sufficiently by his removal from the office of public prosecutor for the northern district.

They admitted today that they would prefer that Tufts be spared the added odium of disbarment. But to avoid this, under the court's finding, he could not hope to practice law again in this State or run for office.

NOW IN AUTO BUSINESS.

In other circles it was pointed out that delay in the Tufts disbarment petition might result in complications so far as the disbarment cases of Joseph C. Pelletier and Daniel H. Coakley are concerned.

Tufts is now engaged in the automobile business. He is reported to have an interest in a Michigan factory. He spends much of his time in New York and the Middle West. He took up this business last November. He is reported to be doing very well in his new line.

Washington, March 8.—John McHenry, twenty-two years old, sentenced to be hanged here on Friday, today wrote President Harding offering to sell himself "body and soul" to the widows and orphans of the two men he shot to death if his sentence is commuted to life imprisonment.

He declared he would be able to earn approximately $100,000 as a lifer in Federal Prison. He says he expects to live until he is sixty-three years old if he is not executed.

"I do not argue or plead for freedom but humbly suggest that commutation of sentence can be made to better serve the end of justice," McHenry wrote.

"Think you—a few seconds of pain and I am gone. The pain I leave after me in the sufferings which I have caused has no mitigation.

"I am not afraid to die. I would be a coward if I did not ask an opportunity to give my life to thus serve the ends of justice.

"I offer now to sign myself away and otherwise dispose of the total amount of my wages earned in prison or elsewhere to be divided among those who have sustained damages through my acts."

Clubwomen of Washington have been active in his behalf. His letter of appeal was carried to the White House by his attorney.

BRYAN SCORES EDUCATORS WHO HANG BY 'INTELLECTUAL TAILS'

REPLIES TO CHICAGO CRITICS

Prominent educators in Chicago a few days ago denounced William Jennings Bryan as a "medievalist" and roundly criticized him for his opposition to the teaching of evolution in the public schools. At the request of the International News Service, the Commoner has written the following answer to his critics.

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.
Written for the International News Service.

(Copyright, 1922, by the International News Service.)

Washington, March 8.—I am not disturbed by any criticism made by any man who thinks he is the descendant of an ape. He may boast of his brute ancestry, but it is a peculiar pride and there are comparatively few who share it with him.

When a college professor winds his intellectual tail round a limb of Darwin's family tree, he naturally looks down with contempt upon ordinary people, who walk on the ground and are content to believe that they were made in the image of God.

But while this gives amusement to the "tree man" it does not disturb the people, except when such men take charge of the educational system of the country and undermine the religious faith of the children entrusted to their care. With something like a million species of life they have not yet been able to prove that a single species came from another.

The flimsy evidence upon which Darwinites build their faith would not be sufficient to convict a person of petty larceny in any court in the civilized world. And yet, upon this so-called evidence, they repudiate the Bible. Darwinism made an agnostic out of Darwin.

RIDICULOUS GUESSES.

You can silence any of these worshippers of a jungle ancestry by asking them to put in writing the vital truths which they reject when they consistently apply Darwin's hypothesis to the Bible. I have been trying to get some of these insolent guessers to answer the question, but they avoid it.

If they will show how little of the Bible they believe to be consistent with Darwinism the people will understand the extent to which they undermine faith with their ridiculous guesses.

They don't believe in the creation of man by separate act as a part of God's plan. They see no divine purpose in man's presence here. They exclude the miraculous and the supernatural as inconsistent with evolution. They libel Christ by denying his virgin birth; they rob Him of His deity, and scout at his resurrection.

In fact, they so belittle Him they regard the finding of the fossil remains of what they call a five-toed horse as a more important event even than the birth of the Saviour.

OBJECTION OF CHRISTIANS.

When the Christian people of this country understand the ravages of agnosticism caused by the substitution of the unsupported guesses for the word of God they will compel the atheists and agnostics to build their own schools instead of using the public schools for the spread of unbelief.

Christians don't object to the teaching of any truth; no truth can be inconsistent with Christianity, but they object to fantastic guesses being substituted for them. "Thus saith the Lord," of the Scriptures.

EDISON AND DEMPSEY CALLED "SUPER-AMERICAN"

Asbury Park, N. J., March 8.—You don't really have to know anything to be successful, although education cannot really be classed as a barrier to fame and success. A Jewish debating society voted that Thomas A. Edison is the best example of success among educated Americans, and named Jack Dempsey as the shining mark of successful men among the uneducated. Edison and Dempsey were named as "foremost types of the super-American."

When asked to face nine glowering prisoners in the Charles Street Jail and pick out a man she alleges assaulted and robbed her of $201 on Albany street, South End, she calmly looked over the lineup, moved slowly along and then without hesitation pointed at a man who the police quickly hauled out of line.

He was Ralph Rich, twenty-four years old, of Roxbury.

The holdup occurred last November.

HOSPITALS ON COREY HILL ATTACKED

"Rest Homes Replacing Corner Saloons," Brookline Man Declares at Hearing

Charges that "rest homes" and other private hospitals springing up over night are taking the place of the corner barroom and the social clubs that formerly had licenses to sell liquor were today made to the legislative Committee on Legal Affairs by George F. Murphy of the United Improvement Association.

Three hundred men and women, protesting against the alleged intolerable conditions surrounding private hospitals in the Corey Hill section of Brookline, demanded the immediate passage of a law for the licensing and public control necessary to put a stop to the alleged nuisances.

Charles E. Comee, who lives within twelve feet of the Summit Hospital, said that for two years he has been awakened night after night by the screeching of patients coming out of ether after operations or from the pain attending the arrival of new-born babes.

"SCREECHING PATIENTS."

"Insane patients have been taken in screeching at night and taken out screeching in the morning," he said. "We have been kept awake by yells at night and I have heard children cry an hour before a nurse arrived to quiet them. Last night a child cried continuously for an hour and forty minutes.

"Patients that undoubtedly had consumption coughed all night and other patients sit on the lawn in dishabille or clad only in bathrobes. A doctor came out in his surgical garments and held up the patient on the lawn for his fee before going in and performing the operation.

"A consumptive patient was taken out and the room was fumigated for the first time since I have been there. It is no fun to look from your house into an open window and see operations being performed."

Comee was asked why the Selectmen didn't do something about it. He said the clerk of the Brookline Selectmen is understood to be the owner of the property occupied by the hospital.

"Can't you make any change in the Selectmen?"

"Two of them were fired out yesterday after sixteen years," he said.

"We are becoming the nation of the drooling mouth since the Volstead Act was passed," said Murphy. "The rest homes and private hospitals are taking the places of the barroom and the social club that had a liquor license. The new hospitals violate the moral law.

CALLS IT OCTOPUS.

"We read more about illegal surgery every day and of patients coming out of hospitals crippled and defective. We ought to have a State standard for hospitals, in order that every patient who goes into one can be sure that he will get good and reasonable treatment."

George B. Hastings of Brookline said that any person, whether he has had experience or not, can start a hospital and there is no way to stop him. He said the people ought to have some say as to whether a hospital is going to be started alongside their homes.

"Private houses are bought up and turned into hospitals over night," said Gorham Dana of Brookline, "and the abutters have no remedy."

Edward A. Talbot, who lives in Bay State road, Back Bay, said that anyone who lives close to a private hospital "would find it intolerable."

"The law dignifies a gasoline tank," said Talbot, "but compared to the tank the private hospital is an octopus."

Chairman Eugene R. Kelley of the State Department of Public Health, Dr. James L. Stone of the Massachusetts Medical Society and Walter H. Creamer of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange said hospitals ought to be licensed and their locations ought to be restricted.

Former Assistant District Attorney William S. Kinney, representing the Commonwealth Hospital, asserted that the opposition comes principally from selfish real estate interests.

DEFENDS HOSPITALS.

"If they came in here with a straightforward public health measure it would be all right," he said, "but they come here with the idea of abolishing all private hospitals."

Kinney said the fact that the Boston Health Department last year closed the Gordon Hospital in Roxbury is positive evidence that the health officials now have ample authority to deal with any situation which demands relief.

"It is no wonder that the Brookline selectmen refused to close those hospitals," he said, "because Corey Hill is the ideal spot for hospitals."

FREIGHTER AND CREW OF 35 LOST AT SEA

Liner Esthonia Arrives Telling of Mid-Atlantic Disaster to Norwegian Ship

By International News Service.

New York, March 8.—A dramatic story of the foundering of the Norwegian freighter Grontoft in a terrific hurricane at sea, with the loss of thirty-five lives, was brought to port today by Captain Hans Jorgensten of the Baltic American liner Esthonia.

Jorgensen said the voyage from Danzig to New York was the roughest he had ever known.

On February 20 the Esthonia was about 700 miles east of Cape Race battering her way through a tempest when an "S. O. S." was picked up from the Grontoft.

The Esthonia put on all steam and started for the Grontoft. The waves were breaking over her decks and the ship was pitching so that the commander could not stand upon the bridge.

"The captain has just told the crew that the ship is lost," said another wireless message picked up by the Esthonia.

The last message broke off in the middle. The wireless operator had gone down with his ship, still working the key. This message read:

"Sinking stern first. Cannot stay up any longer——" The Esthonia could find no trace of wreckage nor crew.

"HELD UP" BY SPRINGFIELD DRY AGENTS

Methods of Liquor Squad Are Sharply Criticized by Police Chief

Springfield, March 8.—Alleged "Old King Brady" methods of local prohibition agents has Springfield alarmed.

Today two doctors were "held up" by supposed bandits, one chased five miles. Riot calls were sent to the police.

Yesterday United States Marshal Edward J. Leyden and his wife were stopped on a lonely road and Mrs. Leyden's life put in danger due to heart affliction.

Drawn guns are said to feature the actions of agents.

Today Dr. George B. Corcoran on his way to a patient was ordered to stop by men flourishing guns. He was in a lonely part of the outskirts of the city. He stepped on the gas and fled.

Dr. Fred N. Ducles, a veterinary, suffered a similar experience.

Both physicians notified police.

Armed reserves investigated. Then discovered prohibition agents were the supposed bandits.

"Dime novel stuff," said the chief of police. "They better lay off."

'Too Much Mother-in-Law,' Says Wife Who Sues for Alienation

Winthrop Stirred by Mrs. Regan's Claim for $25,000; Woman Sued "Will Spend Last Cent to Fight"

"Too much mother-in-law," declares attractive Mrs. Valeda B. Regan, whose $25,000 alienation suit against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary E. Regan, alleging the latter has stolen the affections of her fair-haired husband, James H. Regan, has stirred Winthrop circles.

"Too much mother-in-law, is it?" exclaimed the mother-in-law. "Well, it's just the opposite. That girl broke up her own home. This suit is a hold-up, that's all it is. I'll spend the last dollar I've got to fight this."

And James H. Regan, the husband, is hundreds of miles from the verbal battle being staged. Since his separation from his wife, he has been living in New Jersey, from where he commutes daily to his employment on a New York newspaper.

The young wife, living in an apartment with her sister at No. 89 Shore Drive, Winthrop, told a Boston American reporter that she still loves her husband. "Yes, I still love my Jimmie," the light-haired, blue-eyed wife declared. "I'd be living with him yet if it wasn't for his mother. She's the cause of all our trouble."

DROPS DIVORCE SUIT.

Mrs. Regan, Sr., and her husband, a retired business man, lives at No. 129 Cliff avenue, Winthrop. They own considerable property in Winthrop and are highly respected.

It became known today that Mrs. Regan had dropped a divorce suit against her husband to institute the alienation action. The mother-in-law charged this, and the young wife admitted it.

Discussing her shattered romance, Mrs. Regan declared that "my Jimmie was a fast worker." They were married in Boston following a three-months' courtship.

"I was standing on a Lawrence street corner waiting for a car," she said. "It was raining. This fellow came up, held an umbrella over my head, and that was the start of our romance." And the young wife sighed.

"We exchanged names and thereafter Jimmy was a steady caller at my Methuen home. He then lived with his folks in Lawrence. I was going around with another fellow then, but Jimmie was so persistent that he finally won me. I'll admit that after awhile I was crazy about him.

IT WAS FIFTY-FIFTY."

"Mrs. Regan has often told me I chased her son until I got him. But I didn't. Jimmie chased me. It was fifty-fifty. When he left to go to work in New York last November, I waited and waited, but he never even sent me a Christmas card, to say nothing of money for our home."

The younger Regans lived in Revere and Winthrop during their married life.

Here is the mother-in-law's side of it. She said: "I had read so much of this mother-in-law business in the papers that when my sons got married, I made up my mind that I'd let them paddle their own canoes.

"My son was employed on a Boston newspaper until last Fall. He had put ten-years' savings in an eight-room bungalow at No. 32 Revere street, Winthrop, and there we supposed he and his wife were living happily.

"He had to get work somewhere. He finally did in New York. He wanted his wife to come there and live with him, and rent the house. But she wouldn't go. Because she broke up her own home, she wants me to pay for it.

"The house has now been sold. I think any girl who has a good husband and a good home should be satisfied. I had no more to do with their separation than the man in the moon.

SURPRISED BY TALK.

"Christmas night she called me up. She said: 'I've got some letters from Jimmie, but I'm not going to answer them. I think I'll get a divorce.' Talk like that naturally surprised us.

"My daughter then wrote to my son relating the conversation his wife had with me. He wrote back to us. Who was he to write to about his wife but his own folks? The storekeeper, merchant, or man on the street? Naturally he wrote to us."

And this is the present status of the Regan marital tangle.

Couple whose romance began when they met in the rain Now young wife is suing her mother-in-law.

The fifteen members of the legislative Committee on Military Affairs today went to Governor Cox and protested against any change in the location of the battle memorial to be erected in honor of Massachusetts troops at St. Mihiel, France. Lucy Petrocco of No. 1483 Columbus avenue, his sweetheart, told the police that he followed her home, and on the way asked her to marry him.

On her emphatic refusal, she said, he drew a knife and inflicted a wound on her cheek. Her screams were heard by Patrolman Sheldon, who succeeded in capturing the man and brought him to her home for identification.

JAPANESE IN UNLIGHTED CAR FINED $50

Doctor Says He Was Consoling Weeping Woman When Policeman Came Along

The arrest of a Japanese physician who admitted he was "consoling" a beautiful woman in his automobile stopped in a darkened part of Canterbury street, West Roxbury, with lights out, was revealed in West Roxbury Court today.

Dr. Shuchi Uyematsu, brain specialist at the Boston State Hospital, was fined $10 for having the lights of his car out and $40 for attempting to bribe a police officer.

Testifying in his behalf were Mrs. Graves of Brookline, who has a Summer home in Lincoln, and Mrs. Lydia Beck of Norfolk street, Mattapan.

It was Mrs. Beck who was with the physician when Patrolman Reddy of the West Roxbury station found the machine with lights out.

"We had been out with the doctor in the afternoon," Mrs. Graves testified. "He drove us to my Summer home, where we secured costumes for a party we were attending that night. On the way home Mrs. Beck and I quarreled over her persistence in wanting to wear high heels with a Grecian slave costume. I asked the doctor to drive me to my Brookline home, which he did. I left in a huff."

"After leaving Mrs. Graves," Mrs. Beck testified, "I repented of our quarrel and told the doctor I thought I ought to go back. The doctor stopped the car and I cried. He was consoling me when the patrolman placed him under arrest."

"I was consoling Mrs. Beck when the officer came up," the doctor testified. "I didn't know the lights were out. I thought I only dimmed them when I stopped."

Asked why he had persisted in trying to give the patrolman a bribe of $10, the doctor testified that in Japan it was the custom to pay fines on the spot.

Judge Perrin said: "You have been arrested before for infraction of automobile laws. I think you are acquainted with our custom here. You have lived in the country three years."

50 DOLLAR BILLS FURNISH TRAIL TO CLERK

Flight of Dental School Employe Traced by Notes Drawn on Day He Vanished

By Associated Press.

Philadelphia, March 8.—Fifty-dollar bills used in his flight have furnished the principal clews in the nation-wide search for Walter A. Unger, wanted in connection with the disappearance of securities worth approximately $190,000 from the Dr. Thomas W. Evans Dental Institute and Museum Fund of the University of Pennsylvania.

Most of the money is believed by the authorities to have been lost in stock speculation.

Private detectives working on the case said today that Unger, who was assistant treasurer of the fund, had drawn $12,000 belonging to the dental institute the day he disappeared and that he had gotten the cashier of the bank to give him the entire amount in bills of the fifty dollar denomination.

Most of them were new bills, which, the detectives said, had aided them materially in their hunt.

Petition for Soldier Bonus and Sales Tax

WE respectfully petition Congress to pass the Soldiers' Bonus act without further delay and also to levy a Sales Tax to obtain the money to pay the Bonus.

AUTHORS STAND PAT ON BILL FOR BONUS

Washington, March 8.—In the face of the implied warning that President Harding is opposed to the completed soldier bonus bill now pending in the House because it does not provide for a sales tax to raise the necessary money, Republican leaders today were determined to pass the measure in its present form. They don't believe the President will veto the bill.

It was pointed out today that the original bonus requirements of the President were that (1) there should be no re-enactment of repealed taxes on excess profits, (2) that the treasury should not be called upon to meet a heavy draft for cash payments, and (3) that interest received on the foreign debt to the United States should not be used.

Republican leaders of the House declared all of these conditions have been met in the present bill for it takes less than $16,000,000 out of the treasury, levies no additional taxes and makes no provision for the use of foreign debt bonds.

Chairman Fordney of the House Ways and Means Committee, before leaving Washington, expressed the belief that President Harding would approve the bonus bill as finally drafted by the committee.

Representatives Longworth, Frear and Tilson, leading Republicans on the Ways and Means Committee, declared today that while they did not know the President's mind they were doubtful if he would oppose the bill despite the committee's flat rejection of the sales tax.

It is expected that the bill will be passed by the House early next week. The Ways and Means Committee probably will lay the measure before the House on Saturday.

BANDITS FLEE WITH 1,000 GALLONS WHISKEY

Frederick, Md., March 8.—The "Old Horsey" distillery, ten miles from here, was raided today by bandits operating three motor trucks. The bandits bound and gagged three government watchmen, loaded 1,000 gallons of whiskey on the trucks and made their escape.

7 Deaths in Explosion

Kansas City, Mo., March 8.—The death of Henry Bowman, fifty years old, today brought the list of dead to seven as the result of the explosion of an air tank in the car barns of the Kansas City Railways Company.

20,000 NAMES ARE ADDED TO BONUS PLEA

Twenty thousand more signatures attached to the Boston American's bonus petition demanding speedy action by Congress in behalf of ex-service men and women, have been forwarded to Washington by this newspaper. This makes a total of 70,000 signatures of New Englanders that have been sent to the national Capitol.

Never was a more popular petition circulated in New England than this one calling on the national law makers for quick and definite action in the interests of World War veterans, thousands of whom are now without proper food and clothing.

SAD PLIGHT EXPOSED.

If persons opposing the five-fold adjusted compensation act could see the pitiful plight of some of the veterans who have visited the Petition Editor, they would quickly change their opinion as to whether the bonus would be a good thing. Many of the men said they are "up against it" to such an extent that they have been compelled to beg in order to get something to eat.

"If we could get work we'd be satisfied," said one of the veterans who told his story to the Petition Editor. "But we can't get work. It's all very well for those opposed to the bonus to say 'Give the ex-service men jobs, not a bonus,' but are any of those who use that argument doing anything to obtain work for the veterans?

"It's all very well to talk about helping men, but action is what is needed—not talk."

Ninety-five per cent. of the people who were asked to sign the Boston American's petition calling on Congress to get down to action on the five-fold compensation bill gladly did so.

It is evident that the majority of the people of New England strongly favor the payment of a bonus to World War veterans and that they believe the present dilatory tactics of the solons in Washington should cease.

Women of New England are more determined to get the bonus for their husbands, brothers and sons who served in the World War than are the men themselves, if the letters pouring in upon the Petition Editor can be taken as a criterion.

Here is one that is typical of many others:

"I have a son who was in the service. After coming home he paid, himself, for an expensive operation on his face. After that his teeth had to be attended to at great expense. Finally he had to have them all removed. His face had been crushed, the bones broken.

"He has wanted to get married, but has been unable to get money enough ahead to furnish a house. He would die before he would ask for aid, so do not print my name on this letter. I am writing just to help the cause.

WOULD HELP SON.

"I think every soldier should have a bonus. Each one left his job or business to risk their lives and to suffer while others profiteered. One thousand dollars would not pay the cost of the operations forced upon my son by his injuries in the service, but it would help."

One of the men in the hospital at Fort Banks writes as follows:

"Every letter I have read about the bonus in your paper has been true. I know. I am one of those chaps who got mine while I was overseas. I shall be a cripple for the rest of my days—and I'm proud of it. I don't grudge any of it to the country—but I have a sick wife at home.

DEEP IN DEBT.

"I am deep in debt. That is why I am hoping for a bonus. I need it to help take care of her. It does not seem right that the ex-service man should have to put up shuch a hard fight for what was promised to him when he went marching away from home.

"It is silly, this talk about men not needing the bonus. I met a chap in South Boston some time ago. He asked for 'four-bits' and when I asked him what he wanted it for, showed me how his right breast had been shot away. He wanted the money for medicine.

"I asked him why he did not go to a military hospital, but he said he had been discharged from one as cured. Don't you think, Mr. Editor, a man like that could use the bonus? I do."

May Put Bonus Under Suspension of Rules

Washington, March 8.—Republican leaders are considering a plan to put the soldiers' bonus bill through the House under a suspension of the rules which would shut out amendments and limit debate to forty minutes.

Under this plan a two-thirds vote would be necessary to pass the measure, but leaders believed on the basis of present sentiment among members that this majority could be obtained with votes to spare. Monday, March 20, will be the next rules suspension day.

NAVAL ECONOMY SAVING 50 CTS. PER CAPITA

Experts Show Insignificance of Reduction in National Defence Expenditures

By International News Service.

Washington, March 8.—The naval economy program in Congress will give every American only an extra trip to the movies.

That in everyday terms is the amount saved to the average citizen under the proposed reduction in naval expenditures by Congress, according to estimates of naval officials today. Out in the corn belt, where movies cost less and the per capita tax is lower, John Citizen probably will get all of two trips to the movies.

Putting it another way, if everybody would forego one fling at a typical Broadway show per annum, and donate it to the government, he could maintain a first class navy painlessly.

These possibilities are gathered from the latest statistics presented to a Congressional committee by Admiral Coontz, chief of operations. The treaty navy would cost about $4 annually per person. Congress proposes to reduce this cost to what would amount to little more than $3.50 annually per capita, thus giving each citizen less than 50 cents saved. This is the price of the average first-class moving picture show.

Experts state that practically no saving will be realized from scrapping the ships under construction, as it would cost only a little more to build them than to break them up.

Jap Delegate Sees New Naval Race

Tokio, March 8 (By International News Service).—"The world is wrong in thinking the armament reductions agreed on by the Washington conference mean great financial saving."

This was the declaration of a wireless interview with Baron Kato, leading Japanese delegate to the Washington conference, on board the Taiyo Maru, en route home, printed in the Asahi today.

LODGE PLEADS FOR PACIFIC TREATY

Ending of Anglo-Jap Alliance Its Best Recommendation, Senator Declares

By Associated Press.

Washington, March 8.—Termination of the Anglo-Japanese alliance and substitution of a political system actuated by peace in the Pacific was described in the Senate today by Senator Lodge, the Republican leader and a member of the American arms delegation, as the "main purpose" of the four-power Pacific treaty.

The Anglo-Japanese arrangement, Senator Lodge declared, was regarded by the delegation as "the most dangerous element" in this government's relations with the Far East. He asserted that if the four-power pact with its clause abrogating the alliance failed, the naval limitation agreement also would be endangered, resulting in "failure of the conference."

"The treaty now before us terminates the Anglo-Japanese alliance," said Senator Lodge. "I believe it involves the United States in no obligation except to meet with the other signatories and consult in case of any controversy arising or in case of aggression by some outside power not a signatory.

FEELING OF SUSPICION.

"Wars come from suspicions which develop into hatreds and hatreds which develop into war. The Anglo-Japanese alliance caused a growing feeling of suspicion, not only in the United States, but in Canada. On the other side it tended to give a background to Japan which encouraged the war spirit and large preparations both by land and sea for future conflict.

"It immobilized England and prevented the exercise of her influence in the East for the cause of peace, and peace is distinctly in her interest in that great region. That menace to peace is removed by the four-power treaty.

"The defeat of the four-power treaty would endanger the treaty for the limitation of naval armament, and the failure of the naval treaty would shock and startle the world and bitterly disappoint the American people. We must not forget the close relation between the two treaties. The defeat of the four-power treaty would mean the failure of the conference. Let there be no illusion on that point.

"I have faith to believe that this effort, illustrated by this treaty now before us, will have a large and real result in maintaining the world's peace. If we fail the outlook for the future is dark indeed.

"HOPE OF THE WORLD."

"The best hope of the world for a future where peace may prevail and wars diminish is in the people of the United States. If we fail, who can hope to succeed?

"The United States has never yet permitted failure or defeat to be written in her history. She will not permit it now."

Watson Flays Bryan for Treaty "Dictation"

By International News Service.

Washington, March 8.—The entry of William J. Bryan into the four-power treaty fight aroused a storm of condemnation today from Senator Tom Watson, Democrat, Georgia.

Watson charged Bryan with "grandstanding," and scathingly reviewed the Commoner's war record of 1838. He charged Bryan with attempting to "disrupt the Democratic ranks" to obtain a Republican treaty victory.

"There is a feeling of resentment among Democratic Senators that William J. Bryan should undertake to dictate to them their course of action on the four-power treaty," said Watson. "It is remembered that after the Spanish-American war Bryan took upon himself the task of creating disruption in the Democratic ranks with the purpose of swinging enough Democratic votes to insure a two-thirds majority required by the Republicans to ratify the treaty. He is attempting the same thing now."

CURLEY OPPOSES BILL FOR STREET WIDENING

Mayor Curley today threw his strength against the bill which would authorize the city of Boston to spend $2,500,000 for the widening of Court and Cambridge streets. The bill was filed with the Legislature by Robert Robinson, recently appointed an assistant district attorney of Suffolk County, and was known to have the support of Martin M. Lomasney.

WATERS FLOOD CONNECTICUT TENEMENTS

Two Rivers Overflow Banks and Inundate Nearby Streets

By the Associated Press.

New Haven, Ct., March 8.—Flood conditions were general in all parts of Connecticut today following last night's heavy downpour. Some damage is reported.

At Willimantic the Willimantic and Natchaug rivers overflowed into the streets, and water invaded the first floor of twenty tenements.

In one of these was a woman's body awaiting burial. It was taken upstairs during the night and today men in hip boots waded to the door and carried the coffin on their shoulders to a hearse waiting in another street.

Electric lights in Willimantic went out during the storm, owing to line trouble at the Rockville plant. The Chamber of Commerce was having its annual dinner in its rooms at the time. Eugene Randall, a member, was standing at the top of a staircase and in the dark he moved as he thought toward the parlor but instead missed his footing and plunged down 25 steps, breaking his right leg.

On the lower Connecticut river the only appreciable effect of the storm was an ice jam at the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad bridge at Middletown which made the river overflow its banks in Cromwell.

As the result of the overflowing of Cherry Brook at Woonsocket, three mills, the Glenbrook Worsted Company, Jarret Brothers Company and the Woonsocket branch of the Anchor Webbing Company are closed today, the engine rooms being flooded.

Large quantities of yarn and other stock, stored in the mill basements, also suffered damage.

Ice Jam Carries Three Bridges Away

By International News Service.

New Milford, Ct., March 8.—Damage estimated at between $50,000 and $75,000 was done here and at Kent during last night's storm by the washing out of roads and the carrying away of three bridges, two of them over the Housatonic river.

When the ice broke up in the Housatonic a huge jam below Kent Furnace caused the water to back up. The jam let go with a rush and carried everything before it.

TURKISH DELEGATES IN PARIS TO SEE POINCARE

Paris, March 8 (By the Associated Press)—Two Turkish delegations, one from Constantinople and the other from Angora, the seat of the Turkish Nationalist Government, arrived in Paris today to talk with Premier Poincare about revision of the treaty of Sevres. Both Premier Poincare and Prime Minister Lloyd George of Great Britain are understood to be anxious to prevent resumption of hostilities between the Greeks and the Turks this Spring.

URGES LINK TO BRING PROVINCES NEARER

Fredericton, N. B., March 8—The time has come for the Maritime Provinces to get into closer commercial touch with Boston, said C. W. Robinson, minister of lands and mines, speaking to the Provincial Legislature. He urged the construction of the forty-one mile link between Meductic on the St. John Valley Railway, to Bancroft on the Maine Central to make a short line between Boston and Halifax.

HOSPITAL PATIENTS TO GET RADIO CONCERTS

Hartford, Ct., March 8.—Patients in Hartford hospitals expect soon to have radio concerts served with their toast and tea. A local radio enthusiast has built for one hospital a wheel cabinet with a miniature aerial on top and from which on the side projects a horn. The contrivance proved successful and public subscriptions will provide similar ones for four other hospitals.

NEGRO LYNCHED AFTER AN ATTACK ON CHILD

Aberdeen, Miss., March 8.—William Baker, a negro, was lynched following his capture by several women after he attacked the six year old daughter of a prominent Monroe County planter. The child's screams brought her mother.

Other women of the neighborhood came to assist her. The women held the negro until their men folks arrived. Sheriff Lewis was called out but when he arrived the negro was hanging from a tree.

HOLD GIRL WITNESSSES IN SURGERY CASES

Alice Hall of Shelburne Falls and Mary Durant of Quincy, two of the alleged patients of Mrs. Margaret Proctor, whose places on Dartmouth street, South End, and Washburn street, South Boston, were raided by the police in search of evidence of illegal surgery, were discharged from the City Hospital today and appeared in Municipal Court. They were held as material witnesses against the Proctor woman, whose case will come up Friday.

AMERICAN MURDERED IN VERA CRUZ, MEXICO

Washington, March 8.—Alexander Matherne, an American, was murdered by unknown assailants at Los Naranjos, State of Vera Cruz, Mexico, on March 5, according to a dispatch to the State Department today from American Consul Hickerson at Tampico. The consul said that the American Embassy at Mexico City had been notified of the killing.

Cocoanut Oil Makes a Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten your hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

TWO GIRLS OF 13 QUIT HOME FOR ADVENTURE

Bohemia Lures One; Other Returns After Quest of Atmosphere for Novel

Bobbed hair has replaced hair ribbons and the lure of Bohemia the school room.

The miss of thirteen is a flapper at heart.

Two sweet-faced Boston misses of thirteen have startled old-fashioned folks by disappearing from good homes to seek the thrills of adventure. Their grown-up ideas have proved amazing.

One has been found. She left to get atmosphere for a novel.

The other seeks the solace of puffing scented cigarettes.

She would sacrifice golden curls for the barber's bob, also.

Little Olive True, who lives at No. 21 Pelham street, South End, wanted to write. She left her home for church on Sunday. She was found in East Providence, R. I., after her frantic mother, Mrs. George True, had spent two sleepless nights canvassing relatives and friends and begging police to find her "baby."

"I just wanted atmosphere to write a novel," said Olive when back in her sobbing mother's arms. "That's all I wanted, mamma."

Frances Hayden hasn't been found. She is an artist.

Her mother, Mrs. W. J. Wickham of No. 606 Columbus avenue, said "No" to bobbed hair and put Frances to bed. The following morning, Saturday, she packed up her clothes and disappeared.

"Why did she go?" cried her mother.

A friend in Braintree, with whom Frances had visited, answered the question. She showed a letter that Frances had written. It mentioned the "solace of cigarettes, the thrill of bobbed hair."

Police have scoured Boston and sent through New England description of the thirteen-year-old child. She was a pupil at the Cathedral School on Harrison avenue. Teachers frequently commented on her ability as an artist.

She is described as having brown hair, blue eyes, of light complexion, five feet tall, weighing about ninety-five pounds and wearing when she disappeared a navy-blue coat, black stockings, brown hat with patent-leather trimmings and brown shoes.

MEDFORD HIGH THEFTS LAID TO VISITORS

A long series of mysterious thefts of pupils' clothing from Medford High School today resulted in the decision of the school authorities to equip every dressing-room in the building with spring locks.

The police lay the thefts to outsiders who enter the building under the pretense of visiting the superintendent of schools, whose offices are in the structure. Most of the thefts have been from two dressing-rooms near the main entrance and close to the superintendent's office.

MAYOR SEES PORT BOOM IDEA REALIZED

HADDOCK TO TEMPT WEST COAST APPETITE

Mayor Curley inspected the steamship Neponset before her departure for the Pacific Coast with 1,000 pounds of haddock as a free sample of Boston's fish products in an effort to build up trade. Captain Willetts (on left) of the steamship is holding one of the haddock with the Mayor.

BOSTON FISH SHIPPED TO WEST COAST

Steamship Neponset Leaves With Haddock in Bid for New Trade

The steamship Neponset is Pacific coast bound today, with 1,000 pounds of haddock in her cargo, consigned by Mayor Curley through the courtesy of the New England Fish Exchange to San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle as a free sample of Boston's fish products.

The departure of the Neponset marks another effort by the Mayor to boom the port of Boston, and it is to be hoped that the haddock, which are not common to Pacific waters, will find favor with the West coast taste, and that a new market for Atlantic waters fish develop.

MAYOR INSPECTS SHIP.

Previous to the departure, Mayor Curley made an inspection of the ship at the army base, with President Pulham, Captain Al Wall and Edwin U. Curran of the Boston Fish Exchange. The Mayor was introduced to Captain Willett of the Neponset, and Secretary Tobey of the North Atlantic & Western S. S. Company, and witnessed the storage of the haddock in the refrigerated bulkheads, assuring perfect condition on arrival on the Pacific coast.

The Neponset is the first refrigerator ship to sail from Boston in the intercoastal service, which is to be conducted by the steamship company.

With the leaving of the ship, Mayor Curley sent the following telegrams to Mayor Rolph of San Francisco, Mayor Cryer of Los Angeles and Mayor Caldwell of Seattle:

SOUTHERN SERVICE WEEKLY.

"Through the courtesy of the New England Fish Exchange, I am sending you, on the refrigerating boat Neponset of the North Atlantic and Western fleet, 1,000 pounds of haddock, that I trust, through your efforts will be put to good use. I might suggest that if a market for some of our North Atlantic products can be found in your city, regular shipments will be made by refrigerated service, giving citizens on the West coast, an opportunity to purchase, at low prices, a variety of fine sea foods.

"It may interest you to know that a carload of refrigerated fish leaves Boston every week for Southern points, and that arrangements are now being made for regular country-wide distribution from Boston. This distribution is made possible through scientific refrigeration."

HOW TWO WOMEN ESCAPED OPERATIONS

Doctor Advised Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Happy Results in Both Cases

St. Joseph, Missouri.—"Both of my sides swelled and hurt me so that I could not move or do any of my work. There was heavy pressure and pains through my lower organs and the doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for these troubles. He said I had this one chance, and if the Vegetable Compound did not help me nothing but an operation would. After taking several bottles I felt it was helping me and now I am able to do my own work. If my testimonial will help others I shall be glad for them to read it and hope your Vegetable Compound will do them as much good as it did me."—Mrs. Wm. Lockman, 513 N. 4th St., St. Joseph, Mo.

White Plains, N. Y.—"I had such a pain that I could hardly walk and the doctor said that I needed an operation. I was sick for a year before I started taking your medicine and I could not work. I saw your advertisement in a little book and that is how I came to take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines. I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and the capsules and prescription recommended. I am doing all my work and have gained twenty pounds. I am taking the medicines still, but I feel fine. You have my permission to use this letter for the good of others." — Mrs. Mary Mark, 37 Hamilton Ave., White Plains, N. Y.

Some female troubles may through neglect reach a stage when an operation is necessary. But most of the commoner ailments are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors, or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same.

When disturbing ailments first appear, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. Many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

MAX MITCHELL IS SUED FOR $1,404,069

Allen Also Seeks to Recover Cosmopolitan Funds From Burrell and Others

Four suits by which Bank Commissioner Allen seeks to recover for the depositors of the closed Cosmopolitan Trust Company more than $1,500,000, have been filed in the Superior Court against Max Mitchell, former president of the bank, and now under indictment; Ida F. Mitchell, his wife; Fred J. Burrell, former State treasurer, and the Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Company, who bonded Mitchell for $25,000.

The specifications of the suits allege that Mitchell profited from "misappropriation" of assets, and that the former State treasurer evaded his liability to the bank because notes which he gave have become lost or stolen.

NOTES DISAPPEAR.

The suit against Mitchell personally is for $1,404,069.62. Burrell is sued for $78,342, which it is alleged he received on two promissory notes that were never paid, but which had disappeared when the bank was taken over in 1920.

The suit against Mrs. Mitchell alleges that she received $119,625 on four promissory notes between June 11, 1917, and August 18, 1920, that these notes were never paid, and that they have been either "lost or stolen" from the bank.

SPECIFICATIONS OF BILL.

Specifications in the suit against Mitchell are in part as follows:

1—Promissory note made by Mitchell on June 25, 1920, for $119,500.

2—Promissory note made by Mitchell June 2, 1920, for $10,850.

3—Promissory note made by Moses Brass on December 19, 1918, to the bank for $7,000.

4—Promissory note made by B. L. Gorfinkle on January 7, 1920, to the bank for $63,000.

5—Promissory note made by Anna F. Monahan on June 30, 1920, to the bank for $37,792.

6—Promissory note made by Anna F. Monahan on July 8, 1920, for $40,000.

7—Promissory note of H. C. Shaw Company, made June 18, 1920, for $4,082.

8—Promissory notes of Leon Mitchell, amounting to $33,070.

9—Promissory note of Arthur Morris, dated November 21, 1918, for $40,000.

10—Promissory note of Louis Meyer, dated November 21, 1918, for $89,000.

11—Promissory note of B. L. Gorfinkle dated April 7, 1920, for $60,000.

12—Promissory note of Julius Meyer dated December 30, 1920, for $38,000.

In counts thirteen to twenty-nine, inclusive, the bank sets forth that Mitchell has obtained from the institution at various times various sums amounting to a total of $1,023,874, which is unpaid.

Fresh From Paris

Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France.

MOLYNEUX designs for the South a frock that anticipates late Spring and early Summer days at home. It is of ivory lace and white crepe de chine trimmed at the girdle with white and yellow dahlias. To the sleeves that are cut in one with the bloused bodice are attached straight picot-edge panels of Grecian inspiration. These fall as long as the topmost lace tunic. Yellow crepe de chine faces the leghorn hat, which repeats the dahlia note.

SECTIONS of rose crepe de chine that widen as they descend compose a Molyneux formal evening gown of slender outline. The back is a straight blouse panel terminating in a train, and is held in place at the back of neck by a continuation of the shoulder straps. The waistline is established by a girdle of ruby and opaque white tubular beads.

O'BRIEN WARNS OTHER CITIES OF DRUG EVIL

District Attorney in Address at Lowell Advises Severe Punishment for Pedlars

Lowell, March 8.—When Thomas C. O'Brien, Boston's new district attorney, gets through with Boston drug pedlars Boston will be purged, but other cities must be on the watch for them. So District Attorney O'Brien warned an audience made up of Rotarians.

"When they get bounced out of a big city," he said, "they invariably go to smaller places, and likely as not, you will get them here. But deal with them severely, drive them from your city, for they are the makers of criminals of the worst sort.

"The drug addict is the kind of criminal who stops at nothing to satisfy the cravings of his body and his mind. Murder will not deter him if murder is necessary to get drugs. It is a terrible scourge, and many of the awful crimes which have been committed are the direct result of the habit-forming drugs."

BETTY ALDEN'S CURRENT COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Season's Buds Will Usher at Unity House Lecture on Russia

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

FESTIVITIES at Palm Beach are by no means on the wane as yet. Golf enthusiasts sojourning at the Florida resort are displaying the keenest of interest in the annual Palm Beach golf championship which started this week on the Palm Beach Golf Club course, bringing out a record crowd.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborn Howes and Mrs. Charles L. Harding were of the Boston colony at Palm Beach who entertained at the dinner dance held on Monday night at the Everglades Club. The affair was one of the smartest of the season, and a host of notables attended, including Mr. and Mrs. E. Clarence Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lorillard Barbey, Major and Mrs. Barclay Warburton and Mrs. Edward R. Thomas.

The Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge have as guests at the capital Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Foster Stearns, whose husband, a member of the diplomatic service, is now in Constantinople.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Miss Grace Vanderbilt, who are sojourning at Hot Springs, Va., drove through the Cedar Creed Valley early this week. Miss Vanderbilt also played over the short golf course.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lowell Putnam, now of New York and formerly of Boston, recently entertained at Sherry's.

Mrs. John S. Curtis, who has taken a cottage at Palm Beach for the season, was recently the guest of Mrs. W. Seward Webb, who entertained at luncheon at the Everglades Club. Others present were Mrs. Theodore Frelinghuysen, Mrs. Benjamin Tilgham, Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell and Mrs. Frederick Edey.

USHERING seems to be one of the chief "indoor sports" of the younger set's feminine contingent. Throughout the past season the debutantes and their older sisters have ushered at countless charity entertainments, and many a benefit function has been made more attractive by their presence.

Miss Olivia James, older daughter of the Edward H. James of Mt. Vernon street, has charge of a coterie of young girls who will show members of the audience to their places tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Unity House, when Mrs. Marguerite E. Harrison will talk on "Russia As I Saw It." The following girls—a goodly portion of whom are buds of this season—have promised to seat those attending the address: Virginia Converse, Evelyn Gardiner, Eleanor Hesseltine, Mary James, Katherine Lee, Barbara Reynolds, Frances Sturgis, Susan Sturgis, Anna Wheatland and Ellen Louise Whitney.

Tomorrow night's occasion is in aid of the Russian Famine Fund, which is distributing supplies through the American Friends' Service Committee. No end of Boston society folk have shown their eagerness to respond to the call of the starving Russian, and a crowded audience is assured for tomorrow evening's talk by Mrs. Harrison. The latter, a former Radcliffe girl who spent ten months in a Bolshevist prison, will have a thrilling story to tell her hearers. Mrs. Harrison is the daughter of a prominent Baltimore family, her brother-in-law being Governor of Maryland.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot is honorary chairman of the American Friends' Service Committee of which Dr. Richard C. Cabot is chairman, Dr. Henry L. Bowditch is secretary and Charles Jackson is treasurer. Though the list of members of the committee is too long to be printed in full, some of the names included are as follows: Dr. Vincent Y. Bowditch, John Graham Brooks, Dr. E. A. Codman, Mrs. John S. Codman, Dr. William T. Councilman, Mrs. Frederic Cunningham, Miss Margaret Curtis, Dr. Alexander Forbes, Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes, Robert H. Gardiner, Mrs. Penrose Hallowell, Mrs. Horatio A. Lamb, Mrs. Augustus P. Loring, Mrs. Arthur Lyman, Miss Ida M. Mason, Mrs. John F. Moors, Francis G. Peabody, Honorable and Mrs. Andrew J. Peters, Mrs. Arthur G. Rotch, Very Rev. E. S. Rousmaniere, D. D., Mrs. Arthur A. Shurtleff and Miss Lucy Sturgis.

A goodly portion of the matrons whose names adorn the pages of the Social Register have been enrolled as patronesses for the benefit performance which will be given tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in Jordan Hall for the Winsor Nursery School.

A group of society girls who graduated from the Winsor School, which maintains the Winsor Nursery School, have arranged the benefit. Miss Isabelle Mumford of Chestnut Hill is conducting the ticket sale, and the other members of the committee in charge include Mrs. Malcolm Lang, Mrs. Charles Higgins, Miss Ellen Curtis, Miss Dorothy Thorndike, Miss Alice Bremer, Mrs. J. Gardner Coolidge, 2nd, Miss Susan Lee, Miss Gertrude Mackey and Miss Eleanor Sutton. Miss Sutton will be on hand today at Herrick's from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. to sell tickets for the performance, at which Miss Esther Gustafson, the noted dancer, will make her first appearance in Boston.

Of those adorning the patroness list are Mesdames Andrew Adie, Gordon Abbott, Oliver Ames, Jr., Reed B. Anthony, Hugh Bancroft, John Bartol, Oric Bates, Albert F. Bigelow, Manfred Bowditch, Edward H. Bradford, Henry G. Bradlee, Theodore G. Bremer, Harvey H. Bundy, Charles M. Cabot, Arthur L. Chute, William H. Claflin, Russell Sturgis Codman, Frederick O. Houghton, Charles W. Hubbard, Horatio Lamb, T. Russell Sullivan, Harry Sutton, Albert Thorndike, J. Otis Wardwell, Charles F. Weed, George Wigglesworth, Frederick Winslow, Robert Winsor, Samuel Mixter, Jr., Ernest Lovering, Robert Treat Paine, 2d, Charles A. Porter, John J. Coolidge, M. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., William T. LYNN LANDLORD WITHDRAWS RENT BOOST

Complaint Filed by Necessaries Commission on His Promise to Observe Law

Samuel Tarplin, owner of several tenements on Western avenue and Franklin street, Lynn, summoned before the Commission on Necessaries of Life for increasing rents more than 25 per cent. and for failure to answer communications sent by the commission, agreed today to revoke his demand for rents and to withdraw his fourteen and thirty-day eviction notices.

Thirteen tenants had complained to the commission that rents had been unreasonably increased and that eviction notices had been served on them in event of their failure to pay the increases.

Tarplin told the commission today that he paid $44,000 for the property which he has mortgaged for $46,000 and which is assessed for $36,000.

Inspector Stevens of the Lynn police was present at the hearing, having been detailed by Mayor Harlan McPhetres to tell the result of his investigations. Stevens said the demands of the owner were unreasonable.

During the hearing Owen Manglin of Lynn appeared and said he is a former landlord of Tarplin and claimed that Tarplin owed him $17 rent with interest, which he asked the commission to collect. Chairman Eugene C. Hultman told Manglin that the collection of the rent was a matter for the courts to consider and not for the commission.

With the promise of Tarplin not to demand the increases and not to force his eviction notices, the commission placed the case on file, to be taken from the file on complaint of any tenant.

GHOST FAILS TO PERFORM FOR DR. PRINCE

First Night in Haunt of Antigonish Spirit Produces No Manifestations

Halifax, N. S., March 8 (By the Associated Press).—Obviously embarrassed by the presence of so many strange mortals in his favorite haunt, the ghost of Antigonish failed to walk last night.

This was the substance of a bulletin issued today by Dr. Walter Franklin Prince, director of the American Institute for Scientific Research, who came all the way from New York to make the restless spirit's acquaintance.

Dr. Prince, after his first night in the haunted house of Alex MacDonald, at Caledonia Mills, reported the wee small hours had passed without a single ghostly manifestation.

Neither the doctor, who slept with his fingers tied to strings leading to bells and rattles in various parts of the house, nor the newspaper reporters, movie men and "still" photographers who accompanied him heard a sound.

If the ghost does not make its presence felt tonight, Dr. Prince said, he will ask MacDonald and his adopted daughter, Mary Ellen, to spend another night in the place, in hopes that their familiar forms may cause it to walk again.

PREJUDICE CHARGED BY FLEISCHMANN LAWYER

Washington, March 8.—Denouncing methods of prohibition officials as "high handed and prejudiced," Henry W. Wise, New York lawyer, today asked Revenue Commissioner Blair to rescind an order prohibiting the Fleischmann Company from manufacturing or selling industrial alcohol. Attorney Wise charged that S. F. Rutter had prejudiced the case because he allowed the company only two days to defend their case, while the government was permitteld to consume 11 days.

HIGHER PRICES OF FARM GOODS SUIT HARDING

Calls Rise Aid to Restoration of General Business Stability

Washington, March 8 (By International News Service).—President Harding today in a letter to Eugène Meyer, Jr., managing director of the War Finance Corporation, expressed satisfaction with reports of increases in the prices of staple agricultural products and pointed out that "there can be no restoration of general business stability without the establishment of equitable relativity between the producers' selling price and the cost to the consumer."

The President's letter was in reply to Meyer's report on the activities and accomplishments of the War Finance Corporation since its organization.

In discussing the rise in the prices of farm products, the President said he was "not unmindful of the consuming public, which is concerned in behalf of more moderate living costs," but asserted that "unfortunately the low prices of agricultural staples did not find adequate reflection in a lower cost of living."

Referring to figures given by Meyer, the President said the facts cited by the director were "cheering evidences that we are moving fast toward establishing that necessary balance" in industry.

BOTH MATERNITY BILLS ARE REJECTED

Sheppard-Towner and Miss Spencer's Measures Turned Down by Committees

Both the Sheppard-Towner and the Edna Lawrence Spencer maternity benefits bills were today rejected by unanimous vote of the Committees on Public Health and Social Welfare.

Miss Spencer said she would avail herself of the Initiative and Referendum and take her case directly to the people. Advocates of the Sheppard-Towner law announced they will make a strenuous effort to overturn the committees' report when it reaches the Senate and House, probably early next week.

The Spencer bill provides that the State shall provide medical treatment for expectant mothers and the children, and also about $12 a week to needy women who forego gainful employment during the period of expectancy.

The Sheppard-Towner law was enacted by the national Congress. It establishes a system of maternity benefits, to be administered by the States which accept the law and provide reasonable appropriations for its fulfilment.

Miss Spencer today declared at the hearing that the Legislature is dilly-dallying, while countless mothers and children are dying in childbirth.

Wendell Phillips Thore, father of the old-age pension law; Dr. Adelaide N. Abbott of Boston, and City Solicitor Peter F. Nelligan of Cambridge, appearing by instruction of the Cambridge City Council, supported Miss Spencer's contentions.

The Massachusetts Public Interest League, the Massachusetts Medical Society, the Associated Industries and Francis E. Slattery, prominent in Catholic affairs, were among those who opposed either or both the Spencer and Sheppard-Towner bills.

TWO WOMEN ARE HELD ON NARCOTICS CHARGE

Mrs. Rose Guey and Mrs. Isabel Wong, American women whose husbands are Chinese, were today arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Hayes in Federal Court on charges of illegally possessing narcotics. Each was held for the Grand Jury in $1,000 bail. Mrs. Guey lives at a Harrison avenue address and Mrs. Wong on Broadway, Somerville.

"Diapepsin" for Bad Stomach, Indigestion

Take "Pape's Diapepsin" now! In five minutes your stomach feels fine. Don't bother what upset your stomach or which portion of the food did the damage. If your stomach is sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches; you belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress. Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear. If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless antacid is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only sixty cents for a large case at drug stores.—Advertisement.

2 INJURED WHEN 'BREAKERS' ARE ATTACKED

Riot in Pawtucket Marked by Casualties Among Men on Way to Dunnell Plant

By International News Service.

Pawtucket, R. I., March 8.—Two men, said to be strike-breakers, were injured here today when strikers attacked a number of "breakers" en route to the Dunnell plant of the U. S. Finishing Company.

One of the men was taken to the Pawtucket Memorial Hospital and treated for scalp wounds. The other received medical treatment in the mill office.

The State line was guarded today by militia on the Rhode Island side and by police on the Massachusetts side. This precaution was said to have been taken to prevent Pawtucket operatives marching to Attleboro or Attleboro strikers marching to the Rhode Island city.

Strikers Ready to Turn Down Terms

Providence, March 8. — Striking Rhode Island textile workers went into conference with the State Board of Mediation and Conciliation here today prepared to reject the settlement proposal of the Governor's Board.

The statement that the strikers would reject the latest peace plan was made on the authority of two officers of organized labor who have taken a prominent part in the strike.

The board's proposal was that the mill owners concede the forty-eight-hour week and that the operatives accept a compromise of the original 20 per cent. wage cut.

The strikers were ready to reply that the forty-eight-hour week was won in the industrial dispute of 1919 and is not now a matter for argument. They will stand firm for a repeal of the wage cut as the only basis for settlement, the leaders said.

Organizer Dick in Pawtucket Valley said today: "We will concede nothing. The strike is won."

The textile strike spread today when 225 employes of the Glenlyon Dye Works walked out. They were workers in the steam dye dpartment.

Seven hundred and fifty more employes of the plant will be thrown out of work by the action of the steam dye house workers, it is expected.

Between 1,000 and 1,200 textile strikers marched to the plant and began picketing this afternoon.

3-YEAR-OLD GIRL PAYS INCOME TAX

New Bedford, March 8.—From the youngest to the oldest there is no escape from the income tax. Eighty-seven years separates the youngest from the oldest person in this city to file a return. That it is "the day of youth" a comparison of the two returns show, if that is any criterion. For the youngest, a three-year-old girl, paid a tax of $43, while the oldest, a veteran of ninety, was exempt from payment.

NEW LONDON FINGER PRINTS SANDS CLEW

New London, Ct., March 8.—Finger prints found near Warehouse Point were sent by officials to the Bureau of Investigation at Washington today to be compared with those of Edward F. Sands, missing valet in the William Desmond Taylor murder mystery in Los Angeles. Officials declared that the body of the dead man found near Warehouse Point corresponds to description of Sands.

11 FILIPINOS GET DEATH SENTENCE AND APPEAL

Manila, P. I., March 8.—Counsel for seventy-seven constabulary soldiers, of whom eleven non-commissioned officers were sentenced to death and sixty-six enlisted men to life imprisonment for murders committed in a riot in December, 1920, have filed a notice of appeal to the Supreme Court. The ground stated for the appeal is that the defendants twice were placed in jeopardy for the same offence.

ACCOMMODATIONS FOR 42 VETERANS AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., March 8.—The Navy Department has authorized the use of buildings attached to the Naval Hospital here for the care of forty-two mentally afflicted former service men who now have quarters at Howard. This announcement was made by General Luke H. Callan, department commander of the American Legion.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

DOROTHY DALTON

DOROTHY DALTON is the bright, particular star of the newest Cecil De-Mille film, "Fool's Paradise," now playing at Loew's Orpheum. When this member of the DeMille family takes his megaphone in hand, calls his scenarists about him, and proceeds with his filming of a more or less well known story or play, one expects something. The wary have learned not to expect to see the story as they have read it.

"Fool's Paradise" is no exception to this rule. Taken from a short story by Leonard Merrick, "The Laurels and the Lady," it has been so changed that the producer and director have given the author credit by announcing that it has been "suggested" by Merrick's tale. There can be no displeasure on this point, for Beulah Marie Dix and Sada Cowan, who rewrote the scenario, have made of the material a more filmable story. For reading purposes, the original continues to be the better.

ONE TRAVELS FAR.

One cannot feel cheated on seeing this production. It savors somewhat of a three-ring circus in that it brings in so much. One is taken from El Paso, on the Mexican border, to Siam with but a subtitle to carry you that distance. For good measure there is a picturesque "wishing rug" scene in which the hero and the little French dancer sail through the air past planets and over seas across the world. This latter is not only fantastic but beautifully done, although entirely irrelevant.

The story would be a typical "Western" if it hadn't been in the hands of DeMille. As it is, he has made it exotic and sometimes quixotic.

Arthur Phelps, an ex-soldier whose eyes have been hurt in the war, has sunk his money into oil lands in El Paso. While he is waiting for the land to yield him a fortune he writes poems to Rosa Duchene, a French dancer whom he met in France. When Rosa comes to El Paso on a round-the-world tour, he haunts the stage door to see her, but before he can reach the audience for the performance he is blinded by a trick cigar, given him by Poll Patchoull, a cantina dancer and cigar girl who has fallen in love with him.

When the latter learns of his blindness, she masquerades as the beloved Rosa and marries him. A famous surgeon comes to the town, operates on Phelps, and wins back his eyesight. Then Phelps learns that the woman he has married is the woman he hates, and goes off after Rosa as he learns that oil is found on his land. He gets a divorce.

ALWAYS ENTERTAINS.

He follows Rosa to Siam, where she is busily engaged in alienating the affections of Prince Talat Noi from his favorite wife. Here a particularly DeMille-ish touch is brought in when Rosa hurls her glove to the crocodiles and promises to love the man who brings it back. Both men brave the crocodiles successfully and the eyes of both are opened to the dancer's shallowness and selfishness. Phelps returns to Poll, but even then their troubles are not over. She is not willing to be picked up and thrown down indiscriminately and refuses him. It is not until after a dramatic episode that they are united.

There is nothing of the usual "silken drama" about this film. The director has gone in for plot entirely. Sometimes it is good, sometimes it is bad, but good or bad, it always entertains.

As is usual with DeMille, there is practically an all-star cast. Dorothy Dalton, as I said, walks off with the honors, though Theodore Kosloff has done a good piece of work with the comparatively small role of Roderiguez. His very appearance is always satisfying. Miss Dalton is seen as the colorful Poll. She has seldom looked more lovely or played better.

Conrad Nagle does very well as Arthur Phelps, particularly as his part is unsatisfying. He rather over-accents his passages as a blind man, but for the most part is true to type—not a very heroic type. Mildred Harris is attractive and sufficiently butterfly-ish as Rosa, though she fails to stand out. John Davidson is somewhat better in a lesser role, that of Talat Noi.

CAMERA CLICKS.

JACKIE COOGAN is the latest to listen to the lure of Europe. He and his father and mother plan to sail for England soon and will visit France, Switzerland, Belgium, Norway, Sweden and Ireland. It is more than possible that the "kid" star will make one or two productions overseas. . . . Another Hollywood romance is coming to light. This time it is that of John Davidson, seen in Famous Players and Metro films, who is, it is said, engaged to Helen Dryden, responsible for the gay covers on Vanity Fair. They will not be married for some months. . . . Anna Q. Nilsson has returned to this country after several months' visit abroad, where she has played in London-made Famous Players pictures and has visited her native land, Sweden. . . . Goldwyn has bought the motion picture rights to Kathleen Norris' coming novel, "Sis." It will be started immediately following the publication of the book. . . . Marion Davies' next picture, following "The Bride's Play," now at the Scollay Square Olympia, will be "Beaty's Worth," adapted from a story by Sophie Kerr. The supporting cast includes Forrest Stanley, Hallam Coolley, Antrim Short, June Elvidge, Truly Shattuck and Thomas Jefferson.

SEEKS BEYOND BY ETHER, FINDS IT IN DEATH

Youthful Psychic Took Overdose Trying to Loose Spirit From Body

By Universal Service

New York, March 8.—The spirit of Thure B. Wiggelius, youthful author-chemist, is walking today in the psychic world he created in his unusual book "The Hereafter."

The young chemist was found dead in his room by his father. Death was caused by an overdose of ether. According to the youth's parent the ether had been inhaled with the object of inducing a state of superconsciousness after the manner of Indian cults which resort to drugs to free themselves from the earth's material domination.

Wiggelius has long been interested in spiritualistic work, the father told a detective. He had written several books on psychic phenomena and had performed many experiments with drugs and concoctions in an endeavor to convey his spirit into his psychic world. Frequently the youth had deliberately placed himself in an abnormal state in order to write his impressions when revived.

Files Bill to Stop Girls Marrying at Age of 18

Albany, N. Y., March 8.—Women are placed on an equal basis with men matrimonially by a bill to be submitted to the Legislature by Assemblyman Joseph Steinberg, bachelor marriage expert, of New York City. The bill provides that a girl must be twenty-one, instead of eighteen, as at present, before she can obtain a license to wed without the consent of her parents.

"The women want equal rights," Mr. Steinberg declares. "They should not expect to have an advantage of three years in age over mere man. I believe that in this day of the flapper, when parental authority is being defied by so many girls, more restrictions than ever should be placed on them."

$5,000 IN GOLD LEAF STOLEN MYSTERIOUSLY

Shipment From Germany to Boston via New York Rifled; Lemons Substituted

Mystery surrounding the theft of gold leaf, valued at between $4,000 and $5,000 from three metal containers just received at the Customs House is being investigated by the Boston police and New York authorities.

The leaf was consigned to the Rauskolb & W. Company of No. 16 Franklin street, Medford. It arrived in New York from Germany and reached the Custom House today.

When the containers were inspected it was found that two of them had been rifled. In place of the gold leaf the robbers had stuffed several lemons.

It is not known whether the theft was committed here, in New York or on the ship that brought the consignment from Germany.

Says All of Us Were Born Under a Star, but Volstead Must Have Been Born Under the Dipper

Horoscopes are becoming more popular every day. The stars can tell a man's future, but the chorus girls can tell his past.

Everybody is born under a lucky star, but a lot of us must have been born in the daytime when the stars weren't out.

The stars can tell our fortune, but so can the Credit Men's Association.

We should hitch our wagon to a star. If you're a dairyman, hook it to one in the Milky Way.

But the Milky Way is becoming so crowded that pretty soon there'll be nothing up there but condensed [illegible].

Some of us are born under a star and some of us under a planet. Volstead must have been born under the Dipper.

Any star will bring you luck unless it's on a policeman's coat.

The stars never lie, but their press agents do.

Any store will sell you a horoscope for fifteen cents but you can buy two for a quarter and lead a double life.

Horoscopes are liable to bring you a fortune—if you can sell enough of them.

There is no fake to them at all. You must give the clerk the date of your birth and he'll tell you when you were born.

We all know when we were born, but what we'd like to know is why.

A horoscope can tell you when you're going to die, but a warden can often do the same.

A lot of guys have spent fifteen cents to find this out, when the State had to tell them for nothing.

Of course some horoscopes cost a dollar, but the stars are millions of miles from the earth, and the guy who printed them had to go a long way for his information.

If you were born in May don't buy a horoscope for July and make a fool out of the stars.

He Will Say

"Fight those film-coats on your teeth"

Leading dentists, nearly all the world over, now urge a new method of teeth cleaning. Millions of people already employ it. You see the results everywhere today, in whiter, cleaner teeth.

This is for those who don't know it as yet. We offer a ten-day test. You will then see the unique results and decide what they mean to you.

The war on film

One great object is to fight the film on teeth. You can feel it now—a viscous film. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. And it forms the basis for dingy, dangerous coats.

Ordinary tooth pastes do not effectively combat it. So millions of teeth brushed daily still discolor and decay.

Film absorbs stains, making white teeth cloudy. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Film constantly breeds germs. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film.

How to fight it daily

Dental science has now found two effective film combatants. Able authorities have proved them by many careful tests.

A new tooth paste has been perfected, to comply with five modern requirements. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combatants are embodied in it.

Careful people of some forty races now employ it daily, largely by dental advice. You will also do so when you know how much it does.

Brings other effects

Pepsodent brings two other effects which authorities now desire.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits. They gum the teeth, get between the teeth, and often ferment and form acids.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's neutralizer for acids which cause decay.

Thus every use gives multiplied power to these two great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth.

For beauty's sake

Film removal means prettier teeth. Film-coats make teeth dingy. So every lover of glistening teeth should combat that film daily.

The results will delight you and convince you. Present the coupon for the 10-Day Tube. Start its use tonight.

Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. The normal alkaline mouth, following every use, is most refreshing.

See and feel these results for ten days. Then look at your teeth in your mirror. Then you will know what this new method means to you and yours. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

Grip Left You a Bad Back?

ARE you getting over a cold or grip only to find yourself a victim of backache? Are you suffering headaches, too, dizzy spells, a dull, tired, worn-out feeling and annoying kidney irregularities? Then don't delay! Physicians agree that a vast number of the worst cases of kidney trouble are the result of germ diseases. In every infectious disease the system is alive with poisonous germs and bacteria. The kidneys are overwhelmed with the rush of new work; they break down, become congested, inflamed and diseased. Too often the real trouble is lost sight of until some dangerous kidney ailment sets in. If your kidneys are falling behind, don't wait for serious trouble. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills today. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Read How These Boston Folks Found Relief:

C. P. LAWLESS, 344 Tremont St., says: "Some years ago a cold settled on my kidneys and I had severe backache. The pains settled in the small of my back and it hurt me when I stooped over. I could hardly straighten and the pains would catch me and it was hard for me to do any work. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and got some. They helped me at once, strengthening my kidneys and relieving all the pains. It only took three boxes to relieve all this trouble and I have not had a return of it. Doan's Kidney Pills proved a good and reliable medicine."

MRS. FRED GRANT, 251 Webster St., E. Boston, says: "The first symptom of kidney complaint in my case was backache. I was miserable most of the time. The irregular action of my kidneys caused no end of annoyance, and I also had backaches and specks before my eyes. Hearing about Doan's Kidney Pills, I used a few boxes, from Woodbury Co.'s Drug Store, and they gave me excellent relief."

FRED LeCORN, prop., blacksmith shop, 42 Moseley St., S. Boston, says: "If I strain myself or take cold, my back aches and I have a soreness over my kidneys. The kidney action is not regular at these times. The use of Doan's Kidney Pills has never failed to relieve the trouble."

Mr. LeCorn gave the above statement February 5, 1919, and on September 25, 1920, he added: "I have to use Doan's now only as a kidney tonic to keep my kidneys in good healthy condition."

Make Your Own Gray Hair Remedy

Mrs. A. Dixon a well known Brooklyn trained nurse, made the following statement regarding gray hair: "Streaked, faded or gray hair can be quickly turned black, brown or light brown, by the use of the following remedy that you can make at home:

"It is safe, it does not rub off, is not sticky or gummy and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger."—Advertisement.

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads and that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle [illegible] sponge [illegible] briskly—wash [illegible] will be [illegible] have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin. Pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores, and do not get them out after they become hard. The calonite powder and the water simply dissolve the blackheads [illegible] out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anybody troubled [illegible] blemishes should certainly try this simple method.

GIRLS! LEMONS WHITEN HANDS

Press the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well and you have a quarter-pint of harmless and delightful lemon-bleach lotion to soften and whiten red, rough or chapped hands. This home-made lemon lotion is far superior to glycerin and rose water to smoothen the skin. Famous stage beauties use it to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion because it doesn't irritate.—Advertisement.

'GRAND DUKE' IS FRENCH COMEDY

Lionel Atwill and Lina Abarbanell Featured in Play at Tremont

By FRED J. McISAAC,
Dramatic Editor.

"The Grand Duke," by Sacha Guitry, presented by David Belasco, and introducing Lionel Atwill as a star, is being presented at the Tremont Theatre.

Sacha Guitry is one of the leading dramatists and actors of Paris at the present time. He has written a score of clever comedies and a few more serious pieces, several of which have been produced with success in this country.

The main idea of this particular comedy is that a Russian Grand Duke, who has been ejected from his domains by the ramping Bolshevists, is occupying himself in Paris giving lessons to the daughter of a particularly obnoxious French millionaire of lowly birth and no breeding.

He finds, employed as music teacher to the young girl, a former actress who had been his mistress a score of years before, and he makes the acquaintance of a young man, the girl's physical instructor, who is the son of the actress and himself result of their unsanctified relationship in the distant past.

STORY IS SHALLOW.

The incidents of the play are mostly [illegible] and the story as it is developed [illegible] ere and rather [illegible] French farce [illegible] character of the incidents and situations. "The Grand Duke," however, is a slow-moving affair, and this is [illegible] due to the characterization of the role by Lionel Atwill.

Mr. Atwill's Grand Duke is a very [illegible] As a bit of [illegible] it would be admired [illegible] as a person who [illegible] busily engaged in being a Romanoff full of dignity and prisms, [illegible] off labored witticisms and de[illegible] nical and brutal aphorisms [illegible] deliberate manner [illegible] degenerates into just plain bore.

Quite likely Mr. Atwill's Grand Duke would be recognized and admired by all who know grand dukes intimately, but he ought to be a livelier fellow in the interest of this play.

LINA ABARBANELL SHINES.

On the other hand, the work of Lina Abarbanell, as the music teacher and ancient mistress of his royal nibbs, is a delight from start to finish. She is a true Parisian chic, alluring and amusing. And she sings delightfully for a few brief moments.

Vivian Tobin, as the ingenious daughter of the parvenue, is sweet and winning, but her type is far from being a French jeune fille. Morgan Farley, as the poetic youth who tries to teach gymnastics, is agreeable, but inclined to overact.

The person in the cast who is entirely out of the picture is John L. Shine, who plays a French nouveau riche exactly like a retired New York saloon keeper, taking care to use exactly the same kind of bad English that sort of person would use.

When you consider that this is a Belasco cast—well, it's fortunate that Belasco has so many splendid things to his credit.

PLATTSBURG BUILDINGS DESTOYED BY FIRE

Plattsburg, N. Y., March 8.—Eight long wooden buildings at the Plattsburg barracks used for quartermasters' supplies were destoyed by fire. Army officers declined to estimate the loss but it was known that it would be many thousands of dollars. The buildings were erected for the reserve officers training camp and the contents of all but [illegible] were destroyed. Soldiers saved the property in the others.

HELD FOR DEATH OF HER COMMON LAW HUSBAND

St. Louis, March 8.—Mrs. Ruth Evans, twenty-eight years old, is a patient at the City Hospital, held pending an inquest into the death of her former common law husband, Michael Marchelewski, whom she shot and killed with his own revolver when he entered her home, beat her with a butt of a revolver and threatened the life of her aged mother and young daughter. Mrs. Evans made no demur to his abuse of her herself, she said, but when he started to beat her mother she picked up a revolver he had laid down and fired five bullets into his body.

NEWSPAPER CASHIER ROBBED OF $9,178

New York, March 8.—Two armed bandits held up Willie Litchfield, representative of the New York Globe, in front of the newspaper office in Dey street, and escaped with $1,193 in cash and $7,985 in checks. He was on his way to deposit the money and checks in a bank.

WEDDING SCENE IN MOVIE IS GORGEOUS

Spectators at "The Bride's Play" Have All Thrills of the Real Thing

Next to a general alarm or a riot call there is nothing that gets the mob sooner than to see a bride. Makes no difference whether it's Princess Mary going into Westminster Abbey on the arm of her dad, the "kink," or just little Rosie O'Grady blushing on the arm of her husky, handsome Mike walking from the marriage license bureau to the Justice of the Peace, everybody stretches their neck a little to have a look at the bride.

All the world loves a lover, but it adores a bride.

GORGEOUS WEDDING.

But why run the risk of having your corns crushed hanging around a canopied church to see some smartsetter get out of a limousine and dash up the church steps when you can sit in a nice, comfortable movie chair and be an invited guest at a perfectly gorgeous wedding and see all that's going on.

That's what you can do at "The Bride's Play," Cosmopolitan's latest gorgeous production, playing at the Scollay Square Olympia Theatre.

Not only can you see the wedding that is going on at the present time, but the wedding that took place at the same spot generations before.

How often have you read that some bride will wear the wedding gown her mother and her grandmother wore? And haven't you wondered how her mother and grandmother looked in it, too?

TWO WEDDINGS IN ONE.

Well could anything be more thrilling than to see a wedding that took place in mediaeval times, and then the modern one, at the same place!

Of course there is a reason for all this, that is the story. You might think from the name, "The Bride's Play," that the dame wrote scenarios or something on her honeymoon, but it's nothing like that at all. It's a genuine romance of modern Ireland, with Marion Davies as a sweet little Irish lass, who has much the same romance as her ancestor did in the mediaeval days. There are heartaches and disappointments but happiness at last, of course.

It was an old custom at these weddings for the bride to ask of the men guests—"Are you the one I love?"—until she came to the groom and he answers "I am the one you love the best," and well, of course, the story has to do with what happened when one of the guests unexpectedly answered the bride (the mediaeval and the modern) that he is the one she loves the best—and it is interesting to note the mediaeval and modern way of answering the guy!

You are invited to attend the wedding at the Scollay Square Olympia Theatre. Don't miss it!

TRY THIS ON YOUR OLD ADDING MACHINE

Worcester, March 8.—It took a jury three hours to award Mrs. Nora O'Leary a verdict of $1.12 against Max A. Zieve, real estate operator. It was a civil suit involving real estate. Now Mrs. O'Leary is thinking of taking a course in mathematics or supplanting the parlor talking machine with an adding machine. She wants to figure out this very knotty problem: "If it takes twelve men three hours to give one woman $1.12 how long would it take them to get her a real verdict?" She expects to spend the remainder of her days locating the answer.

GIRL'S SKULL FOUND AT BOTTOM OF SOUND

Noank, [illegible], March 8.—A human skull, apparently that of a young girl, was dragged up from the bottom off Block Island by Earl Foster. The skull is rather small and only the teeth of a young person show, the so-called wisdom teeth not having been cut. It shows a fracture extending from one eye socket nearly to the crown and two of the front teeth had been broken off.

TRIES GAS AND POISON IN SUICIDE ATTEMPT

Edward Dondero, twenty years old, of Central avenue, Everett, is recovering at the Massachusetts General Hospital today from gas and mercury poisoning, following two attempts at suicide. Dondero first tried to end his life by swallowing two poison tablets. When these failed he repaired to his bedroom and turned on the gas. His wife found it out and called a doctor. Dondero has been despondent over his inability to find employment.

FIREMAN KILLED, FOUR OTHERS HURT IN CRASH

Dallas, Tex., March 8.—John Cross was killed and four other firemen seriously injured when two fire trucks collided while rushing to answer an alarm here.

NEW ENGLAND COLLEGES IN INTERCOLLEGIATE INDOOR MEET

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Who's to be who in the intercollegiate track and field world this season will be revealed at the 22nd Regiment Armory, New York city, on Saturday night, when there will be staged the annual indoor intercollegiate meet relay games.

On that occasion representatives of 16 Eastern colleges and universities, each boasting several potential champions, will engage in a series of twelve events, and although indoor competition is somewhat different from outdoor athletics, a fairly accurate estimate of the leading college athletes of the 1922 season may be made on the outcome of Saturday night's meet.

* * *

Seven of the 16 teams entered are from New England institutions, and at least four of the seven are conceded chances of gaining the team championship.

* * *

The seven New England teams are those of Harvard, Dartmouth, Yale, Technology, Boston College, Brown and Amherst, and the first-named four are the possible team champions.

There are eleven varsity events and a freshman medley relay race on the program. The former include 70-yard dash, 60-yard high hurdles, one mile run, two-mile run, broad jump, high jump; pole vault; shotput; 35-pound weight throw, one mile relay and two mile relay, and the point scoring will be the same as that which prevails at the outdoor Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. track and field games, five points for first place, four for second, three for third, two for fourth and one for fifth. With sixteen teams competing for points any one of eight or ten teams possessing a few high point scorers may acquire a sufficient number of counters to gain the team honors, and four of the ten teams so situated are those of Harvard, Dartmouth, Yale and Tech.

* * *

However, Cornell by reason of its triangular victory over Harvard and Dartmouth and its dual meet win over Penn State, looms as the favorite and several upsets will be required to check the title surge of the Ithacans.

* * *

In but few events on the program will there be a lack of real competition for first honors. LeRoy Brown of Dartmouth, holder of the world's indoor high jump record, is generally conceded first place in that event. His teammate "String" Libby is considered the class of Eastern pole vaulters. Captain Fiske Brown of Harvard is the general pick in the 35-pound weight throw, and Dave Kimball of Cornell has proven the master of the college hurdlers he has faced thus far this year and should take that number on the program.

The 70-yard dash, however, looms as very much of a tossup, with Lever of Pennsylvania, Woodring of Syracuse, Wanskar of Harvard, Lovejoy of Cornell and a half dozen others all appearing as possible winners.

The same is true of the one-mile run, in which will appear Larry Shields of Penn State, Billie Burke of Harvard, Jimmie Connolly of Georgetown and several other speedsters of accepted worth.

* * *

Likewise in the two-mile run which will find Bob and Norman Brown of Cornell opposed by such performers as Mal Douglas of Yale, Blondey Romig of Penn State and one or two other distance runners of merit, which serves to remove the sure-thing angle from that event.

The broad jump and shot put are other tossup events with the quality of the majority of contestants either mediocre or not yet established, while the two varsity relay numbers find a flock of colleges claiming the respective winners.

* * *

The drawing for positions in the relay events and the one and two-mile runs resulted as follows:

* * *

One Mile Relay—Pole, Harvard; 2, Amherst; 3, Lafayette; 4, Syracuse; 5, New York University; 6, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; 7, Yale; 8, Pennsylvania; 9, Boston College; 10, Brown; 11, Penn State; 12, Georgetown; 13, Princeton; 14, Dartmouth; 15, Cornell.

Two-mile Relay—Pole, Boston College; 2, Dartmouth; 3, Amherst; 4, M. I. T.; 5, Lafayette; 6, Columbia; 7, N. Y. University; 8, Georgetown; 9, Princeton; 10, Cornell; 11, Penn State; 12, Brown; 13, Yale; 14, Pennsylvania; 15, Syracuse.

Freshman Medley Relay—Pole, Columbia; 2, M. I. T.; 3, Georgetown; 4, Lafayette; 5, Brown; 6, N. Y. University; 7, Boston College; 8, Cornell; 9, Princeton; 10, Amherst; 11, Pennsylvania; 12, Penn State; 13, Harvard; 14, Dartmouth; 15, Yale; 16, Syracuse.

Mile Run (Individuals)—Pole, Princeton; 2, Syracuse; 3, Yale; 4, N. Y. University; 5, Penn State; 6, Columbia; 7, Harvard; 8, Amherst; 9, Boston College; 10, Georgetown; 11, M. I. T.; 12, Pennsylvania; 13, Brown; 14, Lafayette; 15, Cornell; 16, Dartmouth.

Two-Mile Run—Pole, Columbia; 2, Yale; 3, M. I. T.; 4, Pennsylvania; 5, Harvard; 6, Cornell; 7, Amherst; 8, Penn State; 9, Brown; 10, Lafayette; 11, Dartmouth; 12, Syracuse; 13, N. Y. University; 14, Georgetown; 15, Princeton.

* * *

One Mile Run—Burke.
High Jump—Morse.

ARENA OFFERS A HOCKEY DOUBLE-HEADER

Another twin bill is offered at the Arena to the hockey fans, tonight. The Pere Marquette K. of C. team will play the reconstructed B. A. A. sextet and Wollaston and Melrose will meet.

The Knights of Columbus team has faced tough opposition from the other local clubs all season. The Westminsters and the B. A. A. outfit have made hockey life miserable for the Knights. The Caseys tired of being kicked around, turned on the B. A. A. and licked them and did the same to the Westminsters.

Tonight a far different B. A. A. sextet will oppose Synnott's warriors. The wearers of the Unicorn will be a mixture of Boston College, B. A. A. and M. I. T. players.

Should the Knights lose they will suffer a penalty. The original schedule for the week called for two games between the Knights and Pittsburgh. Manager George V. Brown has notified both teams that should the Unicorn triumph over the Knights the B. A. A. team will be given the Saturday night date with the Smoky City outfit.

The B. A. A. players are anxious to establish themselves with their new lineup. Rice is the only Harvard man in the B. A. team.

The Westminsters, the Eastern champions, are speeding West for their big battles with either St. Paul or Eveleth. An effort was made by the Minnesota teams to stall on the coming games with the Eastern champions. Secretary Schooley notified Manager Brown that the ice was sweating on the two Western rinks and requested a postponement.

This proposition didn't appeal to Secretary Sullivan of the Waiters, who departed for St. Paul with his team according to schedule. The teams have been through four tough games with another hard one coming to play off Monday night's scoreless tie which went three overtime periods.

Ag Smith says that he didn't believe he would be able to play in the West, although he made the trip. His injured shoulder is causing him great pain.

The party was made up of thirteen, including Charles F. Adams, one of the Arena directors.

DARTMOUTH TENNIS MEN FORM AN ASSOCIATION

Hanover, N. H., March 8.—Tennis players of Dartmouth College have formed the Dartmouth College Tennis Association for the purpose of arranging local matches for prominent players to further the sport here.

It is expected that matches between some of the leading players of the country will be staged this Spring on the local courts. The organization will also run an annual tournament for members of the association, and will run an interfraternity tournament each Spring.

Willis E. Howe, New England intercollegiate doubles champion, was elected president, C. D. Couch was chosen vice-president, K. O. Klaren, secretary, and C. A. Gray, treasurer.

Perfect Score for B. U. Rifle Team

The Boston University Rifle Team made a clean sweep over the rifle team of the Maine University when it piled up a score of 500 points over Maine's 462. This is the highest score Boston University has ever piled up when six members of the team hit the bull's eye a hundred times in as many shots.

As only the five highest scores of the ten members of the team counted in the final total, the Boston University score is 500 points or 100 per cent. This is a big victory for the Back Bay university as the Maine team is a rifle team of repute.

The six men who made perfect records are: E. C. Paul, Frank Anselmo, Royce Dustin, Frank O'Neil, Louis Pitcher and R. C. Smith.

All the scores between the universities are compared by telegraphic returns. The Boston University rifle team has two more contests in intercollegiate competition with Georgetown on March 11 and Cornell on March 18.

In the third stage of the match with Yale, the Back Bay rifle team gained a point, making a tie score of 2976 for both teams. Two more stages of the five stage match for the intercollegiate rifle championship will be held.

B. C. AND H. C. FIVES CLOSE SEASON

Basketball Game Between Rival Catholic College Teams at Girls' High School

The correct way for Boston College to close a sport season is to engage with its time honored rival, Holy Cross, in its final contest.

So, this evening, the gym of the Girls' High School on West Newton street will be the arena where the Eagle and Purple basketball teams clash in what ought to be one of the liveliest contests of the season.

The Holy Cross five is one of the fastest basketball teams in the East. Only once was the Purple quintet defeated. Springfield College was the only opponent to break the long string of Holy Cross victories, but in a second meeting, Springfield trailed the Purple by 25 points.

McLaughlin, centre for the Purple, has no superior in college circles. As a scorer, his points run a close second to Walsh's figure. Walsh, incidentally, caged thirteen of the baskets in the first game against Boston College.

Captain Tommy Murphy feels confident that his team will not be swamped by the Purple players, and is determined to close the B. C. season with a victory over the beloved rivals.

Hickey, centre for the B. C. quintet, is a worthy opponent of McLaughlin and like his rival, is a high point scorer.

Following is the lineup:

Holy Cross: Walsh and Voorhees, forwards; McLaughlin, centre; Horan and Riopel, backs.

Boston College: Tierney and Murphy, forwards, Hickey, centre, Melley and Farrell, backs.

GIANT MAT MAN AS NEW RIVAL FOR CALZA

Italian Champion Sure to Have Hands Full at G. O. H. Tomorrow Night

George Calza, the Italian mat champion, will have to be at his best if he comes through with flying colors in his match with Bill Maloney at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night.

Maloney, known as the Wrestling Demon, weighs 205 pounds and is of the tearing, rushing style of grappler who try to finish his man just as quickly as possible. He is a thorough master of the mat game, but in Calza he will meet a mixer of his own style.

In another bout Mike Perry, the New York giant, weighing 350 pounds, will meet Milo Steinborn the German Samson. Steinborn in general appearance resembles George Hackenschmidt, standing six feet tall and weighing 2[illegible]0 pounds.

He is considered the strongest man in America today and his feats of strength while in Europe were considered the marvel of the Old World.

He has only lately taken up the catch as catch can style of wrestling, being an adept at the Graeco-Roman style, but he has won the last seven matches in straight falls and hopes to invade the ranks of the top notchers in the near future.

In the curtain raiser Frank Lukich of Cambridge will meet Tom Bowlers of South Boston.

The Howard management also announce a match between Kilonis and Bowser for a later date.

CANTON K. OF C. TEAM PLAYS JOYCE BROTHERS

The Canton Knights of Columbus basketball five and Joyce Brothers of Lynn clash for the second time this season at Canton Town Hall this evening.

Joyce Brothers will have Shipman and Whalen, forwards, Turner, centre, and A. Harney and O'Shea, backs. Canton will be represented by Roache and Downey, forwards, Kelleher, centre and Murphy and Connolly, backs.

HARVARD HOLDS MID-WINTER CARNIVAL

Two Events for Novices on the Long Track Program at Soldiers Field

The annual mid-Winter handicap track carnival will be held at Harvard today on Soldiers Field starting at 3.30 p. m. Although the major portion of the program will consist of handicap events, there is a 40 yard dash and a 600-yard run for novices.

Coach Bingham has entered all his star performers so as to prepare them for the intercollegiates in New York Saturday, where the Crimson will have about twenty representatives.

* * *

In the 40-yard dash, Wansker, who won the event at the triangulars, Percy Jenkins and J. D. Chase are entered. Wansker and Jenkins are nearly on a par and with Vint Chapin have an excellent chance in the New York meet.

* * *

In the 45-yard hurdles Dick Whitney and Carl Hauers, who are making the week-end trip, will meet formidable opposition today on account of the handicapping. Hauers is handling the high sticks better than ever and while Whitney is slow in reaching top form he will develop as the outdoor season progresses.

In the 800 Jim Merrill and Dick Chute are fine prospects, while John Quinn and Joe McCarthy are the best of the 600 flyers. The talent will face opponents with generous margins at the start but hope to sift through this afternoon's field.

Billie Burke's time this afternoon will be closely watched. He is running the mile even faster than Larry Shields and Jimmie Connelly, and at Cambridge they figure the Wakefield boy should win Saturday's mile.

* * *

Captain Fiske Brown, who will throw the thirty-five pound weight and put the shot, is down also for the high jump. Although heavy, Brown is a remarkable all around athlete, being very fast. He should win the thirty-five pound event Saturday at New York, and finish among the point makers with the shot.

* * *

Percy Jenkins and Jim Merrill are down for the running broad jump, Mal Morse for the high jump, and Harris Davis and Dick Reidy for the pole vault.

There will be a relay race between the four classes, a race for managers of athletic teams, and a race for editors on the Crimson, Advocate and Lampoon.

In case the mile relay at the Intercollegiates is run in heats, it is very likely that Billie Burke will pass it up to confine his efforts to the individual mile.

A freshman medley relay team will also accompany the squad Saturday morning from Boston, Captain Brown and Marshall leaving Friday night, as the thirty-five-pound weight event will take place on Columbia Field Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the men throwing the weight from a wooden stand, which will be set in the ground, eliminating shuffling around in the mud.

DARTMOUTH GYMNASTS HAVE THREE BIG MEETS

Hanover, N. H., March 8.—The Dartmouth gym team left for Annapolis, where they will meet the Navy outfit today.

Following the meet at Annapolis the team will journey to Princeton, where it will engage in a triangular meet with Princeton and Penn.

The final meet of the trip will be with Yale at New Haven Saturday.

The team is composed of nine men. The following made the trip: Fraser, Olsen, Rassleur, Taylor, Beggs, Schmidt, McCollon, Taylor and Dawson.

DOUBLE KNOCKOUT IS PROMISED IN COMING GIBBONS AND GREB BOUT

VICTORY BY KAYO ROUTE HOPE OF GREB IN GIBBONS BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

Harry Greb, Pittsburgh light heavyweight who battles Tom Gibbons in a fifteen-round bout at Madison Square Garden next Monday night, says he will not be content to win on points, but that he will strive for a knock out.

Greb is a rather remarkable individual. He has done most of his battling around [illegible] pounds, but regardless of his own [illegible] he has managed to [illegible] his way [illegible] over all of our light heavyweights and a flock of [illegible] heavyweights.

Greb now wants to convince the well known universe that he can punch. That's why he will try to win a kayo on Tom Gibbons' chin Monday night. He says he will disregard his usual boxing brilliancy and stand up and wallop away with the St. Paul man. As Gibbons is quite a puncher himself, it looks like an enjoyable evening for the boys who like to see the old punches go whizzing through the well known ozone.

BRAVES STAR TWIRLERS SHOWING REAL STUFF IN EARLY WORKOUTS

By NICK FLATLEY.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 8.—A few portions of our own [illegible] torridity have thawed out sundry and various thews and sinews of the junior Brave athletes and the young men are now starting to cut loose slightly. The boys are beginning to put the hop on the fast ball for a few minutes per session, and by the time the remainder of the flock arrives there will be quite a lot of pitching prepared for [illegible]

Hardly a bird comes from the min[illegible] about how to stand on the rubber, hold the runners close to the pillows and things like that.

According to Mitch if these young birds start off on the right foot they will always have the correct method. This, backed by the requisite stuff, manufactures shut-outs and no-hit games and so on.

STATE-WIDE MEET PLANS ON MANY CHANGES

By FRED C. LANE.

Many changes will be made in the 1923 Massachusetts Athletic Association State and Preparatory Track Meet, according to James F. Downey, headmaster of Commerce High School and master mind of the largest schoolboy organization in the East. Minor [illegible] selves this year will be corrected and new methods of scoring will be adopted.

It is the plan of Master Downey at the next annual meeting of the organization which takes place on March 26, to propose to discontinue the intermediate and junior divisions. The meet can be run off in two and a half hours, which would mean a saving of much time for the schools forced to attend trials held in the morning.

* * *

This step will be necessary because of the large number of private and prep schools that have signified their intentions of competing in the meet. As the Boston high schools have ceased to be members of the association, and much of the athletic strength of those schools is in the younger element, there is little need of such divisions.

* * *

The Lynn high schools are very prominent in the younger classes, but they, also, are in favor of holding only senior events. The outdoor session of the State meet was for seniors only.

Each year finds the new schools that are in the association presenting stronger teams. Haverhill, St. James, St. John's, Malden and many others would make it impossible to complete the meet in one day should they decide to retain the intermediates and juniors.

* * *

A new name will be adopted. It will be known as the Schoolboy and Preparatory Meet. A new medal will be struck off for the winners in the private schools. It was impossible to make such a change this year because of the late date that private schools entered. Suggestions of every nature will be solicited from the members of the association at the annual meeting. It is the plan of the organizers to make this meet a strong rival to the Penn State games.

A Delightfully Refreshing Story of Love and a Woman's Way With a Man

THE STORY SO FAR

James Edgerton, 36, of an old and aristocratic New York family, returns to New York from abroad on hearing that the firm founded by his forbears has failed. He pays dollar for dollar and finds himself left with an inherited apartment luxuriously furnished, which an iron-clad will has entailed. With two dollars in his pockets he refuses the offer of an old-time friend to help, goes to the apartment, and finds it occupied by two charming young women, distant cousins who beg him to forgive them for being there. They are as poor as he is and have advertised for a position, using the apartment as their headquarters. They ask him to let them stay until they get employment. All three form a partnership to seek work together. A position is secured with the family of Mr. Rivett, rich but ignorant of social customs. They arrive at his estate in the Berkshires.

"IF I'd stuck to all I've said, you'd still be doing the family cooking, dear. Jim Edgerton does, or did, go everywhere in New York. . . . I wonder how far he could take our daughter with him? . . . Wait, Sarah—I'm not reflecting on Christine; I'm only speculating. How do I know about the customs and habits of the New York fauna? I want to go slow. I don't care how little money he has, or even how much he might have had; I'll do that part. But, first, I want to know exactly where he can take Christine. The knot hole may be too big for her."

"They sent you a report from New York, dear. You have a full list of all his relatives."

"I know—I know. If he had none, I wouldn't be afraid. It's a man's relatives who act nasty, not his friends. . . . Does Christine seem to [illegible]?"

"[illegible] devoted to him. . . . I don't know if [illegible] anything more than friendship. Christine is a strange girl. [illegible] was young Inwood——"

[illegible]

"Tell him plainly we don't want her. [illegible] to marry a girl who plays cards the way she does."

[illegible]

"No, no! She's [illegible] die, but she wins too much, stakes too much—smokes too much, drinks [illegible] sister too. [illegible] at cards [illegible]. They've a genius for it. I never saw such playing. Poor cards don't worry them, and they never [illegible] the shadow of advantage [illegible] there's never an [illegible] look of protest—and the judge and the counsel [illegible] and if there ever [illegible] slightest doubt or [illegible] over any point [illegible]. They're [illegible] don't want Jack to marry a gambler!"

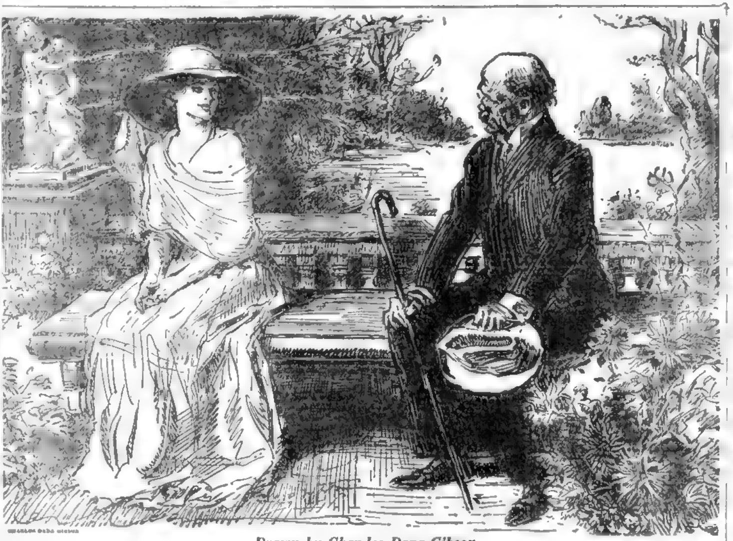
He stood up, his glasses glistening, his little burned eyes fixed on space.

"No," he said; "I've done all the gambling that will be done in this family. I'll do a little more—enough to put the bits on one or two men in New York whose wives could make it easy for my children, if they cared to. Then I'm done, mother."

She bent her head, and her lips moved.

"What?" he said, hand to his ear.

"I was only thinking, Jacob, that I would be happy when you have finished with—business."



Drawn by Charles Dana Gibson

"I want to have a little gossip with you," said Jacob Rivett. "How did you discover I'm such a dreadful gossip?" laughed Diana.

"Don't worry, dear." He put one arm around her, a thin arm in its loose coat sleeve, thin as a tempered steel rod. She laid her faded face against it, comforted by its inflexibility.

"Some day," she said, "when the children are happy—with their families——"

"Yes, yes," he nodded; "a smaller house for you and me—just a little one." He smiled, few people ever had seen him smile. "Just a little house for two little old people," he said, "only one horse to take us about, one servant to feed us—eh, Sarah?"

She looked around her, smiling vaguely at the magnificence.

"I like to dust," she said, coloring up prettily, "and to make jelly. . . . I've wanted to a long while."

"You shall do it; I swear you shall. By God! I'll be glad when that chef is fired!"

"You know, Jacob," she said timidly, "with knitting and dusting and—and a little kitchen work—and you—the day passes very nicely."

"[illegible] day you'll [illegible] some [illegible] be [illegible]"

"And [illegible]," she added [illegible]

"Oh, Lord! Why can't that fool of a [illegible] burst out [illegible] to wait for, doesn't [illegible]"

He laughed. Only his wife had ever heard the dry cackle which was his manifestation of mirth.

[illegible] she lifted her face, [illegible] kissed her.

He went to New York that evening to remain over Wednesday as [illegible]

[illegible] company remaining at Adriutha a certain intimacy had developed enough to make any effort at [illegible] superfluous. [illegible] a [illegible] situation [illegible] the evening, and a preference for the billiard room and [illegible]

It was [illegible] with open fires and [illegible] trophies of some [illegible]—the heads of big game mounted, staring at nothing [illegible] eyes, weapons of a [illegible] on the oaken wainscot [illegible] in racks as [illegible] leather lounges and [illegible] and wide-armed chairs everywhere.

Hither Mrs. Rivett now brought her embroidery or knitting; and around her, within a radius more or less distant, the others gathered or [illegible] in temporary orbits, and games were played and music made and youth flirted and age gossiped much as they did when she was a young girl in Mills Corners, and her husband taught in the red schoolhouse next door.

Sometimes Diana came and sat beside her and knitted a tie destined, she admitted, for nobody in particular; sometimes Edgerton drew his chair beside hers and told her of student life in Paris—watching always for her delightfully timid smile, the shy laugh that she sometimes ventured, the curiously pretty flush that came at times into her cheeks, making them and the faded eyes almost beautiful.

Once or twice it happened that Christine settled herself on a footstool on the other side of her mother to listen too, and the little old lady experienced a furtive content with the situation as Edgerton and her daughter exchanged pleasantries and volleys of gay badinage across her knitting.

But listen as demurely as she might, feign inattention and unconsciousness as she might, she could not detect in either her daughter or in Edgerton any hint of a souvenir [illegible] of anything [illegible] frank camaraderie and the undisguised pleasure in it.

And she sighed sometimes—not understanding, not venturing even to admit to herself the desire that was beginning to establish itself in her gentle breast.

As for Edgerton and Christine, they were now on terms of intimacy almost careless. With Diana he was different.

The day of his bitter outbreak when riding with Diana, Edgerton, terribly ashamed of himself, had gone once more to her and admitted that her rebuke was a just one; that he was an ungrateful dog, disloyal to the hand that fed him, and not worthy of Diana's regard.

And the girl had forgiven him very sweetly, not with much enthusiasm, for his rapidly advancing intimacy with Christine had begun to perplex her, nor could she exactly understand his apparently happy acquiescence in conditions lately so irritating.

Not that he neglected her; in his amiable way he was charming to her and to Silvette; was often with them; drove, rode, walked with them; and often, when the opportunity happened, met them in family conclave to discuss future prospects for business.

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL

AN ABSORBING SERIAL OF LIFE IN THE CITY

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

(Copyright, 1922, by Star Company.)

MRS. HOLLINGSHEAD clung to her children as she bade them good-night. Richard returned her caresses, Patricia submitted to them.

"Please come home early, Patty!" the mother begged once more.

"Oh, do stop fussing. I will come back when I can. Addie will notify you when I get in."

"I want you to stop and see me on your way to bed," the invalid insisted.

"All right!" was the impatient reply. "Good-bye until then."

But when brother and sister had reached the hall the latter beckoned to Adelaide. Patricia spoke in a tone too low to be heard by the blind woman.

More Subterfuge

"You'll have to keep mother from knowing that I am out late," she said hastily. "I have no intention of coming to her room on my way to bed. It will be in the small hours and she will have a fit then if you don't fix it."

"Fix it?"

"Yes. You can do it. You have done it before. Dick"—glancing at her brother—"tells me that you accomplished a dandy imitation of me. Prove it!"

"She is certainly a born actress. She'll do it," [illegible]

"I must do my best to keep Mrs. Hollingshead quiet," Adelaide said. "The doctor warned"——

"Bother the doctor!" Patricia interrupted. "Who cares what he says? But I care if dad raises the devil with me tomorrow because mother has been nervous about me. It's up to you to see that she is not."

She gazed inquiringly into the attendant's face. Then, with a swift change of manner, she smiled entrancingly.

"Come, Addie!" she coaxed, patting the other girl's cheek with her [illegible] fingertips. "[illegible] good [illegible]. I got you out of scrape once, remember! Turn about is fair play."

"A scrape?" Dick echoed eagerly. "What kind of a scrape?"

"None of your business," his sister retorted. "Addie and I know—and we are not telling—are we, Addie?"

Trying to Reassure Her

Before the embarrassed girl could reply, Mrs. Hollingshead called:

"Addie! Where are you? Is anything the matter?"

"No, dear," the brother and sister heard the attendant say as she hurried to the invalid. "I was just talking to your daughter."

"Will she get back home early?" the parent asked with the persistence of invalidism.

"She will get home safely whenever she comes," was the calm response. "Now let us not worry. I promise you she will be all right."

"I will try to trust you," Mrs. Hollingshead said, "although I do not see how you know about it, [illegible]"

"She [illegible] for me to know that you have no cause for anxiety about her," the girl replied.

[illegible] was there to cause? she wondered [illegible] at the window and peered down into the street. The electric light in front of the house showed her the huge limousine at the door. A moment later three figures descended the steps and crossed the sidewalk. They were Richard and Patricia Hollingshead and a man whom Adelaide supposed was young Forsythe.

ARE YOU THIN AND SCRAWNY?

The Bones of the Body Were Not Intended to Show. Cover Them With Flesh

Nobody wants to be called "fat," but even fat people are better off than those unfortunates who are so painfully thin that they have the "scrawny" look. Especially is this true of women. The rounded figure is the figure of health and beauty. If you are too thin you can add solid, firm flesh by taking Gude's Pepto-Mangan with your meals for a few weeks. It will put you in better health and Nature will restore you to your normal weight. Pepto-Mangan itself does not add weight but it does build up health. You won't be thin and scrawny if you are well. Get it of your druggist. He sells it in both liquid and tablet form.—Advertisement.

TRAIN BOY FOR A JOB

—By W. A. McKeever—

NOW is the time for parents to impress their big, indifferent, teen-age sons with the fact that the future is dark for the youth who refuses to continue in school.

Everywhere the course of training in the schools has been broadened and enriched, and the opportunities for an education have become more and more generous. In [illegible] of the unskilled and common laborer has been narrowed. Specialize or you are out of the game, is practically the meaning of this situation to your youthful son. Make the matter clear to him before it is too late.

Fortunately, opportunities for continued education are spreading out so as to reach the restless youth at every possible angle. Day school, night school, trade school and business school, Y. M. C. A. school and apprentice school—all these are offered until the youth who shuns them all is practically forced to give up his self-respect.

With one subject which fires him to a life ambition and one teacher who is willing to stay by him, your boy can march in triumph to a splendid citizenship.

Where can the foregoing combination of inspiring forces be found? Do not lead your boy about the city in search of a school to fit him, for that is too direct an advertisement of his failure, and is humiliating.

First, secure your list of all available [illegible] and when a possible opening is found [illegible] for the man at the selected school who is best suited to invite your son to enter. Probably, without being [illegible] as to what is the matter with [illegible] your boy is looking for a [illegible] who will condone his shortcomings for the time being, and who will act as a patient, confidential adviser of the youth.

One such good man probably will be able to turn him toward a life of usefulness. Again, I urge, find this chance for your boy, if it requires [illegible] of searching to discover him.

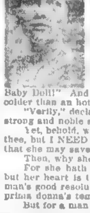
Mrs. Solomon Says—

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1922, by Helen Rowland.

MY Daughter, heed my proverbs and scorn not my wisdom; for I have passed through the Garden of Love and dwelt long in the House of Matrimony; and my judgments are well seasoned.



The Flapper hath said in her heart, "No man can deceive me. For, behold, I may roll my stockings and bob my hair, but I am wise in my generation and I know that all men are prevaricators!"

Yet, peradventure, she shall meet one man who telleth her the TRUTH; and, forever after, she shall be "all mixed up," and her theories shall be broken against her.

"Go to!" saith the sentimental damsel. "I shall wed none but a caveman, whose wooing is as the sirocco, and whose words are warmer than the Gulf Stream."

Yet, peradventure, within the year, a youth just out of college shall murmur casually, "Me for YOU, Baby Doll!" And though his kisses be lighter than a reducing diet and colder than an hotel blanket, she shall accept him joyfully.

"Verily," declareth the idealistic maiden, "I shall marry only a hero, strong and noble and virile, whom I can reverence and adore!"

Yet, behold, when one cometh her way, saying, "Lo, I am unworthy of thee, but I NEED thee!" she will clasp him to her heart and marry him, that she may save and cherish and "mother" him.

Then, why should the spirit of Woman be proud?

For she hath cast aside her shackles and proclaimed her freedom; but her heart is the same today, yesterday and forever—weaker than a man's good resolutions, softer than cold cream, and more variable than a prima donna's temperament.

But for a man it is a game of chance, simpler than Toddle-top! Selah.

After Suffering Intense Agony for Many Years—He Wants to Tell Others.

Dr. Brigadell: I simply had to write and tell you what your wonderful Camphorole has done for me. For many years I suffered the tortures of Rheumatism as only those who have it know. At the same time I had a terrible itch and, covered with sores, the sharp pains were so severe, I could not sleep. Had to get up [illegible] and scratch. It almost drove me crazy. I tried doctor after doctor and all kinds of medicine I was told to take which only left me worse. I could not bend my knees. I am a steamfitter by trade and had to give up my work. You can imagine my surprise after using Camphorole, I started to get better right away. After using two jars of Camphorole I am well and happy and have gone back to work. COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Advertisement.

FOOD FOR THE SCHOOLCHILD

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

CHILDREN should have regular meals and eat nothing between them unless ordered to do so by their physicians. The eating of candy and various dainties between meals is a common cause of digestive and other disorders, generally speaking.

Plenty of water should be drunk between meals, and this is not only valuable in itself, but it will serve to prevent undue hunger before the next meal. Water should not be used to wash down food at meal time. Milk, of course, should be taken during meals.

A little diplomacy is in order when introducing new foods, as otherwise a child may conceive a dislike for a real essential. It is a good plan to give but a small amount of any new food the first time it is introduced. It is also best not to give it again the following day. Repeat it regularly, but not on consecutive days.

When the appetite of children is poor they should not be compelled to eat more than they wish to. Institute light feeding for a few days, and if the appetite continues poor consult a physician.

Thorough mastication must be encouraged, for if the food is gulped down hastily and unchewed, the stomach will be embarrassed and will not digest it properly.

MOTHER!

Your Child's Bowels Need "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.—Advertisement.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

A practical business woman is the first woman to win admission to the British House of Lords. True, she inherited her title, Lady Rhondda, from her father, but she inherited from him something of far more importance, immensely, extraordinary business judgment, irrepressible energy, far-visioned imagination, tremendous business interests, particularly gigantic coal properties.

Her father, originally D. A. Thomas, was one of the keenest and most diligent business men I have ever known. He was equally at home in the banking and investment field, in shipping, manufacturing and in coal mining. The last time he visited the United States, before the war broke out, he confided to me that he was working on plans to acquire important interests on this side of the Atlantic. But his herculean labors as food controller for Britain during the war hastened his death.

* * *

We have not in America today any woman occupying quite as responsible a business position as Lady Rhondda occupies. She is sometimes called "The British Coal Queen." She is the active, directing head of the various huge enterprises built up by her father. He once told me that his daughter was a better business "man" than he could have dared hope a son would have been.

* * *

In America, however, women are forging to the front in various directions. The women whose names are best known in the business world, it must be admitted, attained their station because of the life work of their husbands. For example, Mrs E. H. Harriman has the reputation of being a particularly able business woman, with her finger on the pulse of all the Harriman activities

Mrs. Hetty Green also had a good capitalistic start in life, although most of her large fortune was won after she began handling her own affairs—with the active co-operation and assistance of the Chemical National Bank of New York. Mrs. Russell Sage could not be classed as a business woman; her husband well said, in leaving all his fortune to her, that she was temperamentally better fitted to distribute it than he was.

* * *

No towering corporation, so far as I know, is headed by a woman. But the number of sizable, and even large business enterprises directed by women is gradually increasing.

* * *

A survey of 250 plants, conducted some time ago, developed these facts: That among the women identified with them were 166 production supervisors, twenty-eight employment managers, one vice-president, one director, nine factory managers, seventy-seven department heads, one general superintendent, twenty-two office managers, one labor mediator and forty-one miscellaneous office heads.

* * *

Without mentioning names, it may be interesting to record that a very large gelatine works is run by a woman, that a large Chicago store is headed by a woman, that one of the best-known play brokers in New York is a woman, that one of the very active shipping plants, employing over 15,000 men during the war, had a woman supervisor of the service department, that Brooklyn not so long ago appointed a woman as Borough secretary, that quite a large metal plant is owned and managed by a woman, that a nationally known company doing a large export business has a woman as general manager of its export division, that several women have made big marks as insurance underwriters, that quite a few banks now have women on their official force. And, as we all know, the Chicago Opera Company has been under a woman director.

* * *

The New York Stock Exchange has none but men members, but a very successful woman broker informs me that she plans to apply for membership and that she means to force her way on to the famous floor of the exchange.

And, of course, we are becoming familiar with women in politics.

I know of my own knowledge that the wife of one of America's largest publishers is a business genius, and I am told that the wife of another newspaper publisher is also an unusually able business woman.

What does the future hold in store, I wonder?

LEADERS REACT BEFORE THE FINISH

Traders Take Profits on the Advance; Market Active on the Decline

By W. H. ROSS
Financial Editor

Closing prices on the New York exchange were the lowest for the day. The market reacted in the afternoon under profit-taking and a disposition on the part of bears to increase short commitments. Trading was active on the decline. Transactions for the day approximated 800,000 shares.

Weakest issues included Burns Brothers, Houston, Corn Products, Cuba Cane preferred, International Paper and Union Bag & Paper. They were down from one to two and a half points. Most losses were fractions. This was true of gains.

Issues to close with one to three points higher were Car & Foundry, Lima Locomotive, Atlantic Gulf, International Motor, and Pierce Arrow preferred.

After opening strong and reacting to some extent, the market developed no trend until the call rate, which was 4½ per cent. at the start, was dropped to 4 per cent. Cheaper money caused a moderate rise, and by noon most stocks were showing gains. At midday the upward trend continued, but there was a period of hesitation in the afternoon.

Issues to sell at record highs were Car & Foundry, American Ice, and Lima Locomotive. Highs for a year or more were achieved by American Can, Allis Chalmers, Ann Arbor preferred, Cuban American, Goodrich, Kelly Springfield, Fisk Tire, U. S. Rubber, Pierce Arrow preferred, Industrial Alcohol, and American Safety Razor. Largest gains were by Car & Foundry, and Lima. They were up nearly six points in the last hour. Losses did not much exceed a point. Equipments, rubbers and steels showed the most class strength. Sugars weakened under profit taking. Pool operations contributed to the market's strength. Many stocks are in scanty supply at present. Steels are reflecting higher prices for rolling mill products.

Foreign exchange was reactionary owing to unsettled political conditions in Europe. During the forenoon demand sterling was quoted as low as $4.35.

Equipments Led in the Morning Rally

By W. S. COUSINS.

Copyright, 1922, Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, March 8.—First prices on the New York Stock Exchange today were somewhat higher than the previous close, strength being shown in the industrials, oils and motors that have been marked leaders for the past two weeks.

Following a moderately strong opening irregularity developed, but on the whole the list was strong and steadly throughout the morning. There were no comparatively weak stocks, the market being well supported on all offerings, whereas buyers who put in orders for blocks of stocks found the floating supply more limited than usual.

The equipments led in the morning rally. Buying has been going on steadily in locomotive stocks since the early part of last year, resulting in a great scarcity of these issues in the street.

The independent steel stocks were strong on the reported increase of 200,000 tons in ingot production in February. Republic Iron & Steel advanced through 50, and Bethlehem Steel B to 64⅞.

Shortly after noon the report of the American Sugar Refining Company was published. While the deficit was not as large as the preceding year, it left a great deal to be desired, and the common stock sold off to 73, compared with yesterday's high of 74¾.

Motor stocks refused to yield ground until the last hour when, under heavy selling, prices melted away fractionally. Pierce-Arrow, however, was strong in the face of the fact that new financing to the extent of $10,000,000 or more to pay bank loans is thought to be close at hand.

Victory Loan Issue a Bond Market Feature

By MUNROE ROBERTS.

Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, March 8.—The Victory 4¾s featured the market for government bonds at the opening of the market today, selling at 100.50, ten points higher than the previous highest range, and established a new high record. Other war issues were steady.

With the early break in sterling and franc exchange, the British and French government bonds sold off fractionally, but other European governments were steady. There was also a good inquiry throughout the list for public utility and railroad issues.

In some sections of the financial market the question has been raised as to whether the rise in prime investment bonds had not participated far enough to discount the prospects of easy money and a large flow of funds to this market. It is to be noted that most of the new offerings that have been brought forward in recent weeks have been high coupon, industrials or foreign loans, and while the demand has been sufficient to absorb them many times over, it is questionable if the same result would have been attained were the yields more in line with the highest grade listed bonds.

The strength in government bonds is attributed partly to the readjustment of the investment holdings of high income tax payers near the beginning of a new fiscal year and, perhaps, to a greater extent, to the extensive purchase and retirement of these bonds by the government with sinking funds provided for that purpose.

It is worthy of comment that the various New York city issues, which prior to the war were the mainstay of the listed market for high-class tax exempt investments, have in recent years given place to domestic and foreign governments, as well as foreign municipal issues, which carry the indorsements of home governments and therefore combine every element of a desirable investment medium.

EFFECT OF GAS DECISION IS FAR-REACHING

Echo of Supreme Court Decree Will Be Heard All Over U. S., Says Evans

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, March 8.—Wall Street sleeps, with wealth by the hundred million dollars handed out to the country tributary to it, and the assertion by the most famous court in the world of the rights of property.

The decision of the United States Supreme Court that the New York law limiting the price of gas to 80 cents per thousand feet is confiscatory was received by the market here with an indifference which shows the numbing effect on investors and speculators of the events of the past two or three years. It made little or no change in the prices of securities that would be directly benefitted by that decision. Such advances as there were in the list appear to have been due to other causes.

WILL HAVE AN ECHO.

But Wall Street will presently hear from the countryman, the man who has a few shares of stock in his local company, whether it be a gas company or some other in the class commonly designated as public utilities.

It will presently hear from everywhere in the United States, for this decision must have an echo that nobody can disregard. It goes to the very foundation of property rights and specifies the place where the politicians get off. Its scope is not circumscribed by the one case with which it dealt, but extends to all concerns in that class.

Nor will it be limited to those cases where the United States courts have exclusive jurisdiction, for the word of the United States Supreme Court is a lead to all sorts of courts.

The return of the $20,000,000 or whatever amount it may be, to the Consolidated Gas Company of New York is an incident trivial indeed compared with the whole story.

CORPORATIONS IN LINE.

The courts have been the resort of these public utility corporations as against the attacks made on them, and usually the results have been fairly satisfactory, but also the public utility commissions all over the country have fallen in line with legal opinion to a remarkable degree, and accordingly a better status of these corporations is to be expected.

Indeed that has already arrived. The Insull Companies of this city are a shining example. Securities of this class of corporations have come into considerable favor among discriminating people.

We now hope that a similar change will occur in the case of the railroads. That huge system has been a burden on the investment market and a source of constant anxiety because of the regulations and the government supervision in which it has been tied up, but why should not the doctrine of a reasonable return to the capital invested in the railroads be recognized in accordance with the spirit of this decision? Once that has happened our corporate affairs will be in a condition so far superior to anything we have had in the past as to be beyond comparison. We may hope for it. It is the intent of the Esch-Cummings Act.

AFFAIRS IN BETTER SHAPE.

Surely American affairs are getting into better shape. The bank clearings, which, when they reach the public, are considerably behind current happenings, turn in their testimony in the form of a gain in February, the first for any month since June, 1920, over the corresponding period of the preceding year.

Also private information in this city has it that the February sales of pig iron were the largest for fourteen months.

One may add to this the statement from an authoritative source that a strike of the bituminous coal miners is unlikely. There is ninety days' supply of coal above ground. This furnishes a pretty strong argument against action by the miners, a large percentage of whom seem to be opposed to a strike, though what they will do under the coercion of their leaders, one cannot tell.

The strong demand for investment securities is another item in evidence. The dealers complain that the supply is unpleasantly small.

NEW CAPITAL'S CHANCE.

The money market is governed by all these conditions. Rates have not gone down lately, because the funds are wanted. This indicates that we are not running into stagnation. But the Supreme Court decision will enable the public utility companies to get new capital at lower rates than they have been obliged to pay heretofore.

An investor, if he is going to put his funds into a concern liable to be embarrassed by scheming politicians, will insist on a high rate of interest.

If he feels sure that the Government will protect him in his rights, and that he is subject only to the ordinary contingencies of business, he will lend at a low rate, and our public utility and railroad companies ought to be able to borrow at the lowest rates except those on Government and municipal bonds.

RISING TREND TO BOSTON PRICES

Coppers Show Some Strength and Rails Are Higher; Curb Trading Quiet

Price irregularity marked the opening of the Boston exchange, but during the morning there was a slight and gradual upward movement. By noon the market was fairly strong. Island Creek was prominent, advancing two points to a new record high. It sold at 102½ during the forenoon. Agricultural Chemical preferred advanced 1½ to 62½, its top figure for more than a year. Carson Hill was active, receding a point to 12⅝. Copper showed some strength. New England rails were firmer. Packing issues changed but little. Island Royale and Mohawk moved up a point. Both Osceola and Waltham Watch preferred receded 1½. Waldorf, a leader, gained half a point.

In the afternoon the market was irregular, with more stocks down than up. Island Creek had lost all its gain. Point losses were shown by Ahmeek, United Fruit and Boston & Maine D. Eastern Steamship was active and climbed 2¾. Boston & Maine A gained 1 and American Woolen common 1½.

QUIET CURB TRADING.

Trading was quiet on the Curb and the price movement was mixed. Leaders were Boston & Montana, Eureka and Southern States. Gains at noon included Southern States 2 cents at 27 cents, Verde Mines 1 cent at 23 cents, United Verde Extension ¼ at 28, Verde Central 1-16 at 4 3-16 and Radio common ¼ at 3¼. Among declines were Boston & Montana 1 cent at 40 cents, Three Metals 4 cents at 75 cents, Alpha 1 cent at 25 cents, Crystal 2 cents at 55 cents, Gray Top 1 cent at 23 cents and International Sugar 7 cents at 85 cents. Eureka lost an opening gain of a cent.

WAVE OF BUYING LIFTS EXCHANGE IN LONDON

London, March 8 (By the Associated Press).—Another boom has developed in the gilt-edged section of the stock exchange where the turnover of new business and the transfer of one security to another are conservatively estimated at between £20,000,000 and £25,000,000 daily.

The official lists of transactions are full to overflowing, and work in connection with this volume of business necessitates overtime by staffs of the stock exchange firms. British securities are being bought by insurance houses, banks, politicians and other private investors, who for the moment are giving most attention to the five per cent. war loan, now quoted at 97⅞.

This stock barometer of the market at present is carrying along with it home rails, Argentine rails and other good yielding foreign bonds.

The reason for the present activity is said to be that everybody wants to buy because of the standing of British credit, coupled with the fact that trade is so quiet that millions of money ordinarily used for trade purposes is being transferred to the stock exchange.

There is said to be little American buying in this movement. On the contrary, American firms, which invested in British securities when they were issued, are taking advantage of the rise to realize on their holdings. These, however, are readily absorbed in the current buying wave.

Chicago Grain Market

(By Cosmopolitan News Service.)

Chicago, March 8.—Wheat started lower in the lead of other grains. A further reaction of 2 cents in Liverpool futures at noon and 4 to 5 pence decline in spot wheat started scattered selling in the pit here which encountered a rather feeble buying power. On the excessive break shorts covered and the market steadied.

Weather conditions over the Winter wheat belt are generally favorable. Estimated receipts today showed a moderate run of cars. Hogs at the yards started slow and strong to 10c. higher.

Opening prices were: Wheat—May, 1.41⅝ to 1.40; July, 1.19 to 1.18¾. Corn—May, 63¼ to 63; July, 65¼ to 65⅛; Sept., 68¼. Oats—May, 41¼ to 41⅛; July, 43⅜; Sept., 43½. Pork—May, 20.70. Lard—May, 11.00; July, 11.80 to 12.

Closing prices were: Wheat—May, 1.42⅛ to 1.41⅝; July, 1.20¼ to 1.20⅛; September, 1.13¾. Corn—May, 64 to 64⅛; July, 66⅝ to 66⅜; September, 69. Oats—May, 41⅝; September, 43⅞. Pork—May, 20.70. Lard—March, 11.37; May, 11.52; July, 11.67. Ribs—May, 10.07; July, 10.67.

U. S. CONTROL OF SUGAR TRADE IS ATTACKED

By Associated Press.

New York, March 8.—Severe condemnation of the government control of the sugar industry is contained in the annual report of Earl D. Babst, president of the American Sugar Refining Company, which was read to the stockholders at a meeting in Jersey City today.

"For these experiments of control and of decontrol," he said, "the people of the United States, and of the world have paid hundreds of millions of dollars. The magnificent sugar industry of the United States field, including the producers and refiners, both beet and cane, whether of continental United States, the Philippines, Hawaii, Porto Rico or Cuba, has paid almost with its life.

"United States investments, in the hands of hundreds of thousands of people, amounting to several billions of dollars, have been placed in jeopardy.

"The United States sugar industry the greatest of its kind in the world, ranking in importance with steel, railroads and farm products, was decontrolled by legislative fiat and executive order, without proper regard to elementary economic laws."

The report shows a loss on operations of $2,177,276 during 1921. Surplus was drawn on for $5,311,367 to meet operating losses and to provide for dividends declared. Operating losses were attributed to steadily declining prices.

The total tonnage of the country equalled that of the year before, and the volume of business amounted to $140,000,000. Balance of surplus and reserves amount to more than $29,000,000.

CLAIMS COST OF LIVING EQUAL TO 1918

Representatives of Eastern Railways Says Prosperity of Employes Hinges on Cut

Chicago, March 8.—The public generally, including wage earners in other industries, should not be called upon to pay transportation charges based on an inordinately high level of railroad wages, John G. Walber, executive secretary of the Bureau of Information for the Eastern Railroads, said today before the United States Railroad Labor Board, which is considering the petitions of these railroads and other carriers, for wage reductions among railroad workers.

"It was natural," he said, "that the manufacturers and other representatives of the shipping public should feel that as their industries had been undergoing the process of readjustment, and as the railroad industry was still operating on the basis of war-time costs, plus the increase in the cost of their labor resulting from decisions of the Labor Board, that the railroad industry should also contribute toward the readjustment.

MUST REDUCE FORCES.

"The interests of the employes," he said, "are not opposed to the interests of the railroads I represent.

"The prosperity of these workers is interwoven with and dependent upon the success of the railroad business itself. So long as wages must be maintained upon a war-time level the railroads will be prevented from adjusting their conditions to the peace-time bases, and if their income is absorbed by such war-time scales of pay it necessarily follows that corresponding reductions must be made in the working forces.

"We submit that it is to the greater interest of the railroad employes and the public in general that the employes be placed upon a basis which will permit of working the maximum forces, so providing employment for the greatest numbers, increasing the consuming public and in that way contributing to the general revival of business.

"Although the reduction in the cost of living from May 1, 1920, to July 1, 1921, was approximately 20 per cent., as indicated by governmental and other statistics, yet the reduction in wages effective July 1, 1921, was approximately 11 per cent."

Walber introduced exhibits to show that the cost of living today is back where it was in 1918.

OTHER WAGES LOWER.

Walber submitted an exhibit showing comparative wages in outside industries and by the railroads for comparable labor in more than 3,700 plants and 988 communities in Eastern territory.

For ordinary unskilled labor, according to the exhibit, comparable to railroad labor in shops, roundhouses, etc., of 36,865 such employes in outside industries, only 575 received rates of pay equalling or exceeding the prevailing rate of 41 cents an hour paid by the railroads, and the average rate for these outside industries was 30 cents an hour.

FAMOUS TITLES TEST MEANS MUCH TO VACATIONERS

A few short weeks from now, when New Englanders are studying Summer resort maps, time-tables and booklets, in anticipation of the annual rush to lake, shore and mountain, the Boston American will be asking 219 participants in this Famous Titles Test to divide $5,000 in cash awards.

One contestant then will receive a check for $1,000. Another will be asked to accept $750. The prize package for a third will contain $500.

Since the present Tests were inaugurated, some fifteen months ago, Boston American $1,000 awards have been paid to a little homekeeper, a laboratory assistant, a girl clerk and a housewife. In a few days the fifth $1,000 award will be placed in the hands of a Cambridge stenographer. Four young women, one young man.

One thousand dollars will be yours, then, if at the close of the Famous Titles Test you send in more Correct Titles than are sent in by any other contestant. These are the cash awards:

First Award	$1,000
Second Award	750
Third Award	500
Fourth Award	400
Fifth Award	300
Sixth Award	200
Seventh Award	150
Eighth Award	100
Ninth Award	50
100 Awards of $10 each	1,000
110 Awards of $5 each	550
Total	$5,000

One reader who took part in the recent Book Title Test writes to the Test Editor as follows:

> You asked every participant in the Book Test to send you the name of at least one New Contestant for the Famous Titles Test. Circumstances were such that I could not comply with that request. Three members of my family have been down with the flu. Now, what I want to know is, will my failure to send you a New Contestant militate against my chances in the Famous Titles Test? Was it a condition that, in order to take part in this Test, one must bring along a new member?

REQUEST, NOT DEMAND.

Certainly not! What the Test Editor made was a request, not a demand. Thousands of contestants responded by sending in one, two, five or ten names. Thousands more did not send any. No doubt, like the writer of the above inquiry, these contestants had the best of good reasons. Some reside in communities where they are not well known. Some are so tied down by job and other duties that they "could not get to it."

Readers continue to notify the Test Editor, too, that they desire to be "enrolled" in the Test.

Enrollment is not necessary. You are not required to notify anyone. Cut and save the Test Drawings. For your own convenience, cut and save the Lists of Titles. A way will be found, eventually, by which those who lose only an occasional picture can be supplied with the one or two they require.

The Famous Titles Test will consist of 60 drawings after the manner of the No. 7 you seen here today. The "game" is to find and write the Correct Title. You will find a List of Titles printed with each picture. In this list can be found the CORRECT Title. That is the one you must be looking for.

THIS IS A CONTEST.

One title in today's list fits today's picture BETTER than any other title in the list. That is the Correct Title. Other titles may appear to fit the picture. This is true today. It quite likely will be true on other days.

It is well to understand, from the beginning, that the artist means that occasionally you will miss your step. He does not intend that forty or fifty of you will have little or no difficulty finding and writing the 60 Correct Titles.

Before the Test began—days before—60 Famous Titles were sent to Mr. Artist to be illustrated "for contest purposes." He must be able to explain, defend, "prove" that each drawing fairly, fully and properly illustrates its title but he must not make 60 drawings so plain and unmistakable that every contestant will immediately find the Correct Title. This IS a "contest."

Rules of the Title Test

The Boston American Famous Titles Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given by this newspaper to its readers who submit the largest percentage of correct titles to the sixty pictures to be published one each day for sixty days consecutively (Sundays excepted) in the Boston American.

All employes of the Boston American and their families are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The test will consist of sixty pictures, each representing a famous title, to be printed, one each day, in the Boston American, the first picture on Wednesday, March 1, 1922.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run by the Boston American will not debar anyone from entering this test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE TITLE to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every title must be written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American; or on a page of some book form of itself, accompanied by the picture furnished by the Boston American, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each title blank.

Do not send your titles in "list" form, that is, do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are no complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person submitting the nearest correct solutions, giving weight to skill and judgment.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and exact accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first titles sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American title headquarters, at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., within the specified time limit which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: "Famous Titles Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 239," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all pictures in the Test will contain written or printed matter, if mailed it is absolutely necessary that the packages be fully prepaid at postal rates, as mail of this character goes to the postoffice as first-class matter. The Boston American reserves the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

There will be no title or answer book to buy. Lists of Famous Titles will be printed in the Boston American. The list appearing will contain, among others, the correct title.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Famous Titles Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered as far as possible, through the columns of the Boston American. If participants desire personal replies they should enclose stamped and self-addressed envelopes.

The Boston American reserves the right to make any change in or addition to these conditions that it may deem necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Test, and the decision of the Boston American Test Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

Save the Nautical School

Legislature Should Not Abandon This Valuable Feeder to Our Merchant Marine Through False Economy

Another blow at America's merchant marine is contained in the suggestion, now before the Legislature, to abandon the Massachusetts Nautical School.

Economy is given as the basis for this.

That is a silly reason; a penny wise, pound foolish reason.

When the war forced this country to double its navy and to build ships faster than any nation ever dreamed of doing, we lacked trained officers of native stock.

Plenty of Englishmen, trained by Great Britain; plenty of Norwegian and Swedish officers, but few Americans.

We had forgotten our past. We had forgotten the fact that on the sea lies the greatness of nations.

And now the Commission on State Administration and Expenditures would have us repeat that mistake—continue and redouble that neglect.

It would have us drop the State Nautical School, which for thirty years has turned out seafaring officers, capable of meeting and beating the best of other lands, because "the training of merchant sailors is a private affair or a Federal function, and not a State function." Foolish? Yes. Very foolish. The training of seamen is the function of all of us.

The commission in its report says the school costs $70,000 a year in addition to the $25,000 allowed by the Federal government.

If it was $170,000 it would be little enough to pay out for the benefits and prestige that school has brought and will bring to Massachusetts.

Neglect of Teachers

The Pope Recognizes Fact That There Is Tendency Not to Pay Those Who Instruct Youth

The Pope has just made a public declaration which seems to indicate that he recognizes that there is a tendency not to pay those who are teaching the youth of the world.

It is sadly true in this country. We who first brought forth the necessity of general public education to a free government once put the school teacher on a pedestal. In our early days it was one of the most desirable of professions. Through the public schools the great men of the country passed first as the taught and then the teachers. It was the one profession, except in the South, where a woman could earn her living without sacrifice of social position. It was well paid relatively in those days—splendidly paid if we consider the social distinction of the work and the hours and vacation.

But in this age where honors go to those who have accumulated the most money, no matter how it has been accumulated, where we worship gross and material gods, we have forgotten our school teachers and our clergymen.

The statistics which we gathered during the draft in the World War startled us out of the idea that we were still leading the nations in education, and humiliated those of us who took pride in our supposed leadership in general education.

This is an indirect result of the decline in the relative honor and remuneration of our school teachers and our clergy. The most costly economy is saving at the expense of the quality of our teachers and clergy. The most uneconomical machine in our whole social system is a dissatisfied or an incapable teacher or clergyman.

Deserve Better Pay

Coast Guard, Geodetic Survey and Health Service Will Get It If Congressional Report Is Accepted

The special joint Congressional Committee on the readjustment of service pay has made a report to the Senate which will be of great interest to the Coast Guard, the Geodetic Survey and the Public Health Service. It is good news that these splendid government services are to be recognized by a more just remuneration if this report is accepted.

We do not know in New England, especially along the coast, how great is the service of the Geodetic Survey corps. Their contribution is largely to the undramatic sciences, but in the mountains of the West, and in Alaska, and everywhere off the beaten paths under the American flag, those who see this fine body of men at their work appreciate them.

But we do know in New England the service which our Coast Guards render to life and property along our shores. Theirs is a soldier's work in a time of peace, and no company of soldiers going over the top in battle ever faced more danger than a squad of Coast Guard men putting off to rescue a ship in one of the great storms. Their pay has been strangely low for the character of their work, and the government should be the best paymaster.

Boom Building in Boston

Now Is the Time for Master Builders and Workmen to Get Together—It Would Stimulate All Business

Boston wants still better business, now that trade is emerging from the doldrums. There is no use in leaning back in our office chairs, as too many are doing, twiddling our thumbs and exclaiming with blind confidence: "Spring will bring the long-awaited prosperity!"

Trade revivals do not hinge on the calendar or follow the phases of the moon; they are mostly the result of intelligent effort.

All over the country today experts are agreeing that the best aid to business would be a building boom. In Boston such a boom would mean much to thousands, where hosts of tenants are compelled to pay such high rents that they have very little money left to spend on anything else.

Spring and Summer will not of themselves bring a building boom. Now is the time for master builders and workmen to get together and settle their differences, if any, before the good building weather comes; and, most important, make sure their schedules are within the reach of the general public's purse.

Master builders, workmen and home-seeker, let everyone do his part in making a Greater Boston building boom.

Harvard Business School

We are glad to note the increase in the enrollment of students in the Harvard Business School. This is a post-graduate school for men who having a college education want to learn something special about the conduct of business.

More than 500 men have enrolled and 150 colleges are represented by these 500 students of the business school. This increase in the enrollment occurred in spite of the increase in tuition fee. It indicates that Dean Donham's teaching staff does work which is receiving good report.

CHILD BEST WHO KNOWS WHAT IT WANTS

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service Incorporated.

"CLANG — CLANG—CLANG!" How cross the gripman was, and how he made his bell tell the world about it.

"Honk! Honk! Honk!" The motor-cars and their drivers were furious, too.

The big limousine in front was rather calm about it, but the fretful little fellow in the cheap car next in line fairly foamed to be off. And as for an impudent little racer—he and his driver had half a mind to push right past the traffic officer and take a chance, anyhow.

The traffic officer was laughing. Laughing so hard that he couldn't speak, so he just pointed.

I followed with my eyes the direction of his finger and there, in the middle of the crossing of the busiest and most dangerous street in town, stood little Miss Keturie—a regular little roly poly of a creature was Miss Keturie!

She Blocked Traffic

Not a day over three years—chubby and round, and dimpled and flaxen, and rosy and blue-eyed to that degree that you couldn't see her without wanting to grab her, and Miss Keturie was blocking the traffic.

Her mother tried to pull her ahead, but not she.

She wouldn't budge! She just stood pointing with her pudgy finger at—what do you suppose?

At a ridiculous, little blue silk garter that had slipped down from her blue silk stocking, and not one inch would she move until that garter was up out of public sight and comfortable and cozy in its rightful place. Mother had to put down her bundles in the middle of the street and get down and fasten that garter—or we'd be there waiting for the traffic signal—yet.

What do you suppose little Miss Keturie will do when she grows up?

Whatever she is, and wherever she is, she'll have what she wants when she wants it. And if she's half as entrancing a picture then as she is now, everyone will be glad to give it to her.

What would you have done if you'd been Miss Keturie's mother?

Oh, of course you would never have a Miss Keturie for a child—not for a minute! Yours would be Mary Ellen or Jane Anne—her garter would never come down, in the first place; and if it did, it wouldn't be blue silk, a frail, fragile, foolish thing like that.

A Diplomat

And Jane Anne—why—Jane Anne—she would have kicked the garter off into the gutter and slipped along and trusted to luck to keep her stocking up. Jane Anne is a diplomat—and you knew it before she was out of her cradle. Jane Anne probably will have blue garters and the things that go with them, but somebody else will pay for them, if you please—and if she happens to lose them, she'll never let any one know about it—be sure of that.

Somebody's Birthday

By ELSA ALLEN

Copyright, 1922, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.

IF today is the anniversary of your birth, you are to be congratulated on the possession of a character of great versatility. It may not be as great in anyone faculty as it is in variety of traits—but even if you never reach the sublime heights of success often given to a single track of mind, your life will nevertheless be one of intense interest and enthusiasm, at least there will be nothing you do not understand.

You are constantly in touch with general topics of the day and you have a splendid sense of the actions of masses. You would make a very fair journalist.

Both men and women born this day are predestined to matrimony and if they remain unmarried their fates will never be completely fulfilled.

You are also, in a minor degree, gifted with an appreciation of all that is beautiful in the arts and music.

In fact, if given the proper training and encouragement, you might make a gratifying career of the graphic arts, but your success will be one of drawing rather than color.

Today is one of general good outlook.

Your ensuing year will be financially prosperous, but tragic in the spiritual suffering you will experience probably through the loss of a near relative.

A child born today will be healthy in mind and body, with a talent for the law.

Famous persons born today:

Oliver Wendell Holmes, Justice U. S. Supreme Court.

Catherine Lorillard Wolfe, Philanthropist.

Albert E. Sterter, Artist.

Homer C. Davenport, Cartoonist.

SAY IT WITH FLOWERS—AND MUSIC AND YOU

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

TAFFY and epitaphy were once cleverly connected by Robert G. Ingersoll.

He said he would prefer a little of the former while he was alive to a lot of the latter after he was dead.

Something similar is true of the slogan of the National Florist's Association: Say It With Flowers. It is better to "say it" with a single flower to a living recipient than to decorate a coffin with a magnificent wreath.

Of course, sincere appreciation and honest praise are preferable to honeyed flattery. Also, it is better to be frankly candid than hypocritically candied.

But, in general, it would be well if we could become more generous in graciousness, readier to pass around "bouquets,"—unafraid of being charged with insincerity.

The lover of America, who wants to see the flowering of its spirit, would be happy to note such cultivation of our manner (not to speak here of the refinement of our manners) as would make us vie with the French, the Italian, and the Spanish, in gracefulness and charm.

We are so fearful of even seeming insincere that we are grudging in our graciousness. Paying compliments is almost entirely reserved for lovers, and even by them is restricted to the period of courtship.

Ulterior Motive

Almost, you are regarded as a foreigner, or as having an ulterior motive, if you indulge in pretty speeches. And if you are a woman saying something sweet to another woman, surely your compliment covers some sinister design!

Out on you! Forget your suspicions! Take your hands out of your pockets! The dealer in compliments has not come to pick them. Nor does he want to borrow your money or curry your favor.

He is saying "nice" things to you, because it is nice to do so. Perhaps, you even deserve them—who knows? At any rate, he enjoys doing it—the base flatterer! It makes him feel purry inside. And, confess, you yourself enjoy the sensation of having your fur stroked the right way.

Why not? No real deception is involved. You are not moved to over-estimate yourself, because your self-esteem has momentarily been saluted.

On the other hand, you really think pretty highly of yourself. Therefore, why assume the mask of mock modesty to hide the blushes of response to a graceful tribute?

To come right to the point, our democratic America might be a much happier land to live in, if aristocratic courtesy and knightly chivalry and a general graciousness characterized our conduct and beautified our relationships.

These are not superficial traits nor artificial characteristics; but they are the heart-qualities of the warm and genial Human Being.

What we request herewith is to let the heart speak, and to allow the human tides within us to have their normal flow.

Not so much profession of love on Sundays, but the more generous gift of it on all days and always.

Say it with flowers and music—and YOU!

That merely advises you to lift the lid of self-repression, which you have clapped so tightly over the chambers of your heart, and to permit yourself to pour forth the milk of human kindness.

It is part of the poorer heritage from Puritan austerity and the shut-in gruffness of our northerly elements, which has made graciousness so unfashionable in our country. High time, therefore, to allow the Latin lands and Greece and the Orient to make their more genial blending of our elements. If YOU have hitherto begrudged your graciousness, and you regret your niggardliness—show it now!

Let It Sing

Cultivate the flowers of your future, and bestow upon others their beauty and their fragrance. Develop the music of your soul and let it sing your human song to cheer and hearten your fellow-pilgrims.

Perhaps, the time will come when we can dispense with extravagant tombstones and meaningless epitaphs, and be content to inscribe a simple slab with such words as Lover, Loving, and Beloved.

Surely under the humanising influence of democracy, the number of those among us must quickly increase who know the wisdom of even spendthrift kindliness, blessing him who gives and him who receives.

There is a holiness of beauty in expressing your nature as it were with floral graciousness and with musical rhythm, decorating and enriching life with your every contact.

A pleasant word here, a kindly deed there, and a friendly spirit everywhere,—they cost you so little and they mean so much!

That is the way to say it with flowers—and music—and YOU!

Without money and without price, you can thus win a place among the benefactors of your kind. AND that Kind is all mankind!
